RALPH McGILL

You Savvy Mach 2½?

The poor layman, who could pretty well comprehend the manufacture and effect of gunpowder, has been having an increasingly rocky road to travel.

Today he is about out of it. The jargon of electronics, of ultrasonic aircraft and guided missiles strikes his ears like a torrent of French or German. The argot of the nuclear scientists is as incomprehensible to him as the language of headhunters on the upper Amazon.

The late Alfred Einstein wrote a simple formula, E equals MC-2. This started the physicists off in the search which resulted in splitting the atom.

A missile man, developing the ICBM which will travel 5,000 miles, puts down equations which stop even the nuclear expert. The ICBM researcher's formula might be: Pkm equals Pkh.Phr.Rs.Rm. That is to say the probability of kill per missile equals the probability of kill given a hit, the probable reliability of the missile, the reliability of the launching support system, plus also the reliability of the missile proper.

Electronics

Ultrasonic aircraft and the missiles, too, have built into them intricate devices which "think" for them.

Admiring designers of ultrasonic aircraft stand around before one of their creations and explain it is steadier in flight than a big airliner and easier to control because the electronic equipment "anticipates" the needs of the "Mach 2" plane and leaves the pilot free for other tasks.

The gun on such a craft operates independently. When an opposing aircraft is "in the sights" radar causes an electronic impulse to fire the weapon.

The layman, for example, listens patiently to the foreign tongue explaining the mysteries of a Mach 2 airplane. Finally, weary of his own stupidity, he picks out a friendly looking scientist, takes him aside, and asks, "Will you please explain a few kindergarten things to me, such as Mach 1?"

Mach, he learns, is the name of a German aeronautical engineer who first began to classify speeds of modern aircraft with that of sound. Therefore, a "Mach 1 plane" is the slowest of such designation. It can fly only as fast as sound. A Mach 1, plus, and a Mach 2½, of course, explain themselves.

They are stopped just now, are the missile scientists, by the fact a Mach 2½ aircraft is up against the thermal barrier. How long can such a craft fly with its wings cherry-red hot without having such a wing melt away—or come off the second or third time it flies? How many times can you get alloy skin hot and cool without dangerous metal "fatigue?"

They don't know. But they will find out.

Aluminum, for example, softens up something like putty when it is kept at temperatures of 400 degrees Fahrenheit for any length of time. The copper in it melts. But already Alcoa is producing high temperature alloys which have tested out at altitudes of better than 60,000 feet, and temperatures above 500 degrees for more than 100 hours.

Rubber

Now, though, the men and women who live in that other world and speak its languages, have accomplished yet another new and bizarre thing.

They have successfully produced synthetic "natural" rubber. And there is no contradiction in terms. It is not to be confused with the synthetic substitute which was developed and used so successfully in the great war.

Scientists of the B. F. Goodrich Company have produced in the laboratory the true molecule of tree-grown rubber. It is chemically and physically identical with it. It has the same carbon-hydrogen ratio and molecular arrangement. It is sticky exactly as the gum from rubber trees is sticky. It is—in fact—pure "natural" rubber. Prices will be competitive with better grades of tree rubber.

Think what this will mean to Malaya, Ceylon, Liberia and other faraway sources of crude rubber? Think what it will mean in terms of human lives . . . as well as economy?

U.S. Leery Of Embargo Bid by Reds

Mideast Arms Ban Would Favor Egypt

By ELIE ABEL
(Copyright 1956 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, April 27—The State Department took a jaundiced view today of the Soviet Union's professed willingness to bar all arms shipments to the Middle East through a United Nations embargo.

As interpreted here, the parting statement of Nikita S. Khrushchev in London this morning amounts to a demand that the United States and Britain abandon the Baghdad Pact in exchange for a Russian promise that no more arms will be sent to Egypt or other Arab countries.

PRICE OF CALM

If that is the Soviet price for a little more tranquility in the Middle East, the United States and Britain are likely to reject it, responsible officials said.

The United States, while it has balked at formal membership in the Baghdad alliance, joined its economic committee only a week ago and has undertaken to support it firmly. Britain is the senior partner, linked by the treaty with Turkey, Iraq, Iran and Pakistan.

An embargo on arms shipments to the Middle East, even if that loose geographic term is interpreted as covering only the Arab states and Israel, would halt further military assistance to Iraq.

WOULD DENY JETS

It also would deny Israel the jet fighters she has been trying to buy in western countries to offset the increased air strength that Egypt acquired from the Soviet bloc.

The effect would be to leave Lieut. Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, the Egyptian premier, with a decided advantage in weapons of destruction and would thus Soviet Asks Britain Help It Woo U.S.

LONDON, April 27 (AP)—Russia's leaders offered today to join a global embargo on arms to the Middle East and urged Britain to help improve Soviet relations with the United States.

Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev then sailed for home while their host, Prime Minister Anthony Eden, declared their visit bore results that will allow the world "to rest more secure."

Eden evaluated his "little summit" conference with the Russians in a nationwide television report shortly after the Soviet leaders departed from Portsmouth aboard the cruiser Orjonikidze.

The Soviet leaders wound up their 10-day visit to Britain with an unprecedented news conference during which they:

1. Declared Soviet willingness to join in a worldwide embargo on arms shipments to the explosive Middle East.
2. Appealed for Britain's aid in easing relations between Moscow and Washington.
3. Disclosed Eden had accepted an invitation to visit the Soviet Union at some still-undecided future date.
4. Made another pitch for an end to the Western embargo on strategic trade with the Communist bloc.
5. Confirmed Russia has switched its stand on disarmament and is now prepared to discuss nuclear as well as conventional disarmament.

THOUSANDS AT THOMASVILLE

71-Unit Parade Tops 35th Rose Festival

By ALBERT RILEY
Constitution Staff Writer

THOMASVILLE, April 27—The Deep South paid homage to the beauty of the rose Friday in colorful pageantry that marked Thomasville's 35th annual Rose Festival.

Tens of thousands of spectators from Georgia, Florida and Alabama lined downtown streets to watch an hour-long parade of 71 units, including 26 brilliant floats, 19 bands and hundreds of lovely girls.

It looked as if south Georgia and north Florida had simply closed up shop for the day and converged on Thomasville to help this city celebrate its big day of the year.

Crowd estimates ranged anywhere from 30,000 to 50,000 on a cloudy morning that turned into an afternoon bright with sunshine.

When the festive parade was over the visitors moved out to the Veterans' Administration domiciliary on the edge of town to marvel at the beauty of the Rose Show itself.

And there they gasped in admiration of the queens of the show — floral and feminine variety.

FLOWER QUEEN

The horticultural queen of the show was a long-stemmed red rose — a Charlotte Armstrong blossom—grown and entered by Mrs. Wesley Milligan of Thomasville.

Adjudged the finest bloom in the show, it occupied a mirrored place of honor in the VA gymnasium and won the show's coveted tricolor ribbon.

Masculine eyes in particular were diverted, however, by queens of another sort—Sharon Kay Ritchie, the "Miss America of 1956," and Jackie Ponder of Thomasville, 1956 festival queen.

SWEEPSTAKES VICTOR

Crowned by Miss America, Miss Ponder presided over the show, surrounded by the members of her court in bouffant evening dresses.

Farms Earn 7 Pct. More In Georgia

Georgia farmers experienced a $4,416,000 increase in cash receipts from marketings in the first two months of 1956 compared with the corresponding period last year.

The 7.1-per-cent advance placed Georgia ninth among 20 states in the nation showing gains this year.

These are the figures released here Friday by Merrill C. Lofton, Atlanta field manager for the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Total cash receipts in Georgia for the two-month period this year were placed at $66,632,000. This figure includes a gain of from $44,876,000 to $47,741,000 in crop product sales and compares with last year's $62,216,000.

The state's farmers realized $47,741,000 from livestock and its products during January and February. This was an increase of $2,865,000 over last year's period. The increase was the South's second largest and the nation's 16th largest.

Over the Southeast, farm marketings totaled nearly a half billion dollars for the two-month period. This was an increase of some $36,912,000 over the comparable 1955 period.

Today Predicted Warmest So Far

The warmest day thus far this year is slated for Atlantans Saturday, the weatherman predicts, but scattered thundersnowers are expected to cool things off Sunday.

Saturday is expected to be partly cloudy and warm. Sunday's forecast is about the same.

Predicted extremes Saturday are 59 and 84, followed by 62 to 80 Sunday. After a morning low of 57, Friday's mercury rose to 82 in the afternoon, the peak so far in 1956.

House Votes $51 Billion For Roads

$14 Billion Boost In Taxes Okayed

By JOHN D. MORRIS
(Copyright 1956 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, April 27—The House of Representatives today approved a record $51,860,000,000 road-building program with tax increases on highway users to help pay for it.

The authorization bill was passed by a vote of 388 to 19 and sent to the Senate.

It calls for federal outlays of $37,610,000,000—thrice the present rate—over a 13-year period. The states would build the roads and pay $14,250,000,000 of the cost.

16-YEAR TAXES

Higher taxes on gasoline, tires, trucks, buses and trailers would be levied over a 16-year period to produce an estimated $14,814,000,000 in new federal revenues.

To the average motorist this would mean an increase of $6 to $9 a year in the cost of operating an automobile, according to Rep. Boggs (D-LA). Boggs devised the bill's tax features.

Both the construction and revenue provisions would become effective next July 1.

40,000-MILE SYSTEM

Of the projected federal outlays, $25,000,000,000 is designated for completion of a 40,000-mile system of interstate highways linking 42 state capitals and 90 per cent of all cities with more than 50,000 residents. The federal government would pay 90 per cent of the cost and the states 10 per cent.

The bill also would initiate a gradual step-up in the regular federal-aid highway program with a view to congressional appropriations of $11,375,000,000 in the 13-year period. These would be matched by the states.

Construction of park, forest and other public domain roads financed entirely by the federal government also would be expanded. Thirteen-year appropriations of $1,235,000,000 are contemplated by the bill.

SPECIAL TRUST FUND

Together with present highway-user taxes, which the bill would funnel into a special trust fund exclusively for roads, the new levies would yield an estimated $38,498,000,000 by June 30, 1972.

The present 2-cents-a-gallon federal tax on gasoline and other motor fuels would be raised to 3 cents. Tires would be taxed at 8 cents a pound instead of 5 cents. Excise on trucks, buses and trailers would be raised from 8 per cent of the manufacturer's price to 10 per cent.

Atlantan Shot In Apartment Of Woman

A 22-year-old carnival employe late Friday was wounded by pistol fire and detectives said both he and the young woman in whose apartment the shooting occurred were detained for questioning.

Edward James Rossi, who gave a downtown hotel as his address, was treated at Grady Hospital for a wound in the abdomen. Detectives M. A. Johnson and M. W. Blackwell said Rossi, who at first insisted he accidentally wounded himself, was held for suspicion of assault and battery.

Miss Arleen Evans, 24, of 2025 Peachtree Rd., where the shooting was said to have occurred, was held for suspicion of assault with intent to murder, detectives said.

Miss Evans was quoted a saying that she met Rossi 18 months ago and that he had constantly telephoned her and wired her since.

Detectives quoted Miss Evans as saying she fired the gun after Rossi came to her apartment Friday night and refused to leave. They added Rossi refused to make any further statement at the time.

BALILES' ATTORNEYS SEEK BOARD'S CLEMENCY

Plea To Free Baliles Given Pardon Board

Attorneys for Roy Baliles Friday petitioned the Georgia Pardon and Parole Board to commute his life sentence.

Board Chairman Hugh Carney said, "We'll investigate the case next week in Georgia and then either pass on the petition or call for a hearing."

FOUR ALTERNATIVES

He said Baliles, who lived in Gastonia, N.C., for 14 years under the name of Roy Standley, could be paroled, pardoned, commuted or denied (sent back to prison).

Carney said he had received more than 500 letters urging the board to grant clemency to Baliles.

Petitions bearing thousands of names, letters from public officials and other prominent citizens of Gastonia and other documents were presented to the board.

PETITIONS OFFERED

The petitions were presented to the board by Atty. Edward B. Everett of Atlanta, former chairman of the Pardon and Parole Board, and George Kasper of Atlanta, who were acting for State Sen. Frank Pat Cooke and Hugh Johnston of Gastonia. Cooke and Johnston were retained by friends and relatives of Baliles to seek his release.

Baliles was sentenced to life in the 1936 slaying of a Fannin County policeman. He served four years, then escaped.

In requesting commutation, Everett told the board: "We respectfully request that you examine the record which we feel will show to your satisfaction that at the time of the commission of the offense Roy Baliles was an immature and underprivileged child, 15 years of age, and that there were other mitigating circumstances connected with the case."

CITES REHABILITATION

Everett said the clemency request also was "further based on the grounds that Baliles has, during the past 16 years, become fully rehabilitated, a worthwhile and law-abiding citizen of the City of Gastonia," and that it would "serve no useful purpose" to return him to jail.

Among the other exhibits were a diploma, which Baliles got from Gastonia schools after starting his new life there, and an honorable discharge from the Army.

H-Bomb Test 2 Miles Aloft Likely May 8

HONOLULU, April 27 (AP)—The 1956 Pacific nuclear tests probably will be kicked off around May 8 with an air-dropped H-bomb exploded nearly two miles above the ocean near Bikini, officials of the atomic task force indicated today.

This will be the first "public" hydrogen bomb explosion, and will be witnessed by 15 newsmen. It is expected to be equal in power to several million tons of TNT.

Informed sources said they believe the weapon will be dropped by a B52 intercontinental bomber —the Strategic Air Command's newest and fastest H-bomber. It was known that at least two, and probably more B52s have passed through here recently headed east toward Eniwetok.

The initial shot will be big enough to kick up millions of tons of radioactive mist if exploded low enough for its fireball to touch the surface.

However, twice-wary since the international complications caused by fallout during the 1954 tests, the experimenters this year intended to explode the big one high enough to be safe—probably about 10,000 feet up.

With less than two weeks to go, the task force is rushing final preparations at the proving ground. Public information headquarters are being set up both here at Pearl Harbor and at Bikini.

Rep. Richards Demands Ike Spell Out Aim

By WILLIAM S. WHITE
(Copyright 1956 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, April 27—The two Democratic foreign policy leaders in Congress raised fresh obstacles today to the administration's program for greatly expanded foreign aid.

The net effect of their manifestos was not to endanger a continuance of foreign aid in substantial amount but to make all but certain that it could not prevail in the enlarged form sought by the President.

Rep. James P. Richards (D-SC), chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House, announced flatly that his group will "mark time" on the bill until the Eisenhower administration clarifies precisely where it intends to go.

RESISTS REQUESTS

Sen. George (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, declared his adamant resistance to the one example of long-term commitment authority thus far asked by the administration.

This is the Aswam Dam Project in Egypt, which the State Department has put forward as a prototype of the sort of multi-year assistance it would like to be able to offer.

George, reiterating his opposition to the whole principle of long-term aid, asserted that a commitment to the Aswam Dam was repugnant on two counts.

CITES FIGHTS—

In the first place, he said, it was "wholly inconsistent" for the United States, in the climate now existing between the Arab states and Israel, to enter the Middle East in this way.

Egypt, he asserted, was "at the spearhead of the Arab states."

In the second place, he observed that the Aswan Dam would injure cotton exports from the United States by making available an additional 2,000,000 acres of arable land through irrigation.

Though it might be possible to obtain an Egyptian stipulation that the land would not be planted to cotton, George declared, the notion of "tying strings to any aid we give" was wrong in principle and thus inadmissible.

But Sen. George went on wholly to discourage Richards' movement in the House for a deliberate slow-

House Unit Votes 77 New Acres for Dobbins Base

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—A House subcommittee has given approval for the Air Force to acquire about 77 acres adjacent to Dobbins Air Force Base, Marietta, Ga., for repair and maintenance buildings, aircraft parking, hangars, supply facilities and family housing.

The Atlanta Naval Air Station is being relocated at Dobbins.

The approval was given by the House Armed Services Real Estate subcommittee yesterday.

Pledges of No Early Mideast War Believed Won by Hammarskjold

BEIRUT, Lebanon, April 27 — Most observers here believe that Dag Hammarskjold has won an assurance there will be no war in the Middle East for several months at least.

Before his arrival on his peace mission, however, a war before June had been considered an even-money bet in some circles.

The secretary general of the United Nations does not yet have any document to prove his success. He does not even have verbal assurances from all concerned, but there has been a definite change in the atmosphere.

Egypt and Israel have issued formal orders to their forces to obey the cease-fire conditions they formally accepted in the armistice agreement seven years ago. That is a big step toward insuring peace.

Syria has not allowed any official statement on the results of Hammarskjold's talks with the Damascus government. But that very silence is considered an indication the Syrians are not being unreasonable.

Lebanon is expected to follow the lead of other Arab countries. Jordan has agreed to a cease-fire like the Egyptian one, for all practical purposes, but must have the approval of King Hussein before announcing it.

Thus, the score for Hammarskjold is as follows: Egypt and Israel, which had seemed on the verge of unleashing a general war in this area, have promised restraint. Jordan, third country in which war seemed most likely to start, has virtually accepted the same agreement, and there has been no real outcry against the trend toward peace.

When asked if it was not an old habit in this controversy to sign cease-fires and then break them, a member of Hammarskjold's staff said tonight such is definitely not the case.

He said that since the signing of the general armistice in the spring of 1949 this is the first time it has been found necessary to handle questions of armistice lines on so high a level and on the spot.

Rescuer at Stone Mtn., Vidalian Given Awards

Elias Nour, noted rescuer of persons in danger on Stone Mountain, and H. Dempsey McArthur, Vidalia Negro who gave his life trying to save children from a fire, were among 19 honored by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission Friday.

Bronze medals and cash awards were announced by the commission from its offices in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Nour, 39, has rescued or helped resuce 34 persons in danger of falling from the mountain.

He received the award for the rescue of Jack M. Wilson, 23, on Oct. 18, 1953. Wilson lost his footing and slid to an almost vertical face of the rock 400 feet above the mountain base. His heels caught in a narrow crevice. By leaning back and extending his arms along the rock, Wilson was barely able to hold on.

Nour had four men lower him over the face of the mountain. After adding three more sections to the original rope, Nour reached Wilson 605 feet below, tied the rope around Wilson's waist and helped him to safety.

The posthumous medal went to McArthur, 48-year-old Negro who was burned to death in an unsuccessful attempt to save four neighbor children when their apartment burned at Vidalia May 5, 1955.

Though he was weak from internal injuries suffered in an automobile accident eight days before, McArthur dashed into the smoke-filled apartment. His body was found in the ruins.

The Carnegie commission was set up in Pittsburgh in 1904 with 5 million dollars granted by the late steel magnate Andrew Carnegie.

Top Need Is Keeping Fliers, LeMay Says

Warns Russian 'Professionals' Are More Efficient Airmen

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, head of the Strategic Air Command, said today the operating efficiency of the U.S. Air Force has been "slipping" for the past four years while the Russians are "probably improving" in that respect.

LeMay told a Senate Armed Services subcommittee the Red air force is a "more professional" body than this country's in terms of personnel. And he said the U.S. position threatens to grow worse unless more trained men can be kept in the Air Force.

"I consider the lack of skilled manpower to be my most critical deficiency," said LeMay, whose long-range bombers would be the nation's first line of defense in the event of enemy attack.

In another Senate hearing, Lt. Gen. Donald L. Putt said, "We couldn't help but be disturbed" about the progress of U.S. air power.

Putt, deputy chief of staff in charge of development for the Air Force, commented without elaboration before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee which is considering a $4,625,000 request for aircraft development and research.

LeMay testified at an open session called by Chairman Symington (D-Mo) in the Armed Services group's inquiry into the relative strength of the U.S. and Russian air forces.

AIR MIGHT

Symington announced the SAC commander will appear again Monday to answer in open session some "ultimate questions" involving the comparative air strength of the two countries.

At that time his opinion undoubtedly will be asked in a major defense controversy—whether the administration's program of developing and building long-range weapons is adequate for the country's defense needs.

LeMay was aided in his testimony today by Brig. Gen. Horace Wade, SAC's personnel director, who said the professional caliber of the U.S. Air Force is being "constantly diluted" while the Russians "do not have the same type of problem."

PROFESSIONAL FORCE

While this country can't get the trained air officers and men it needs, Wade said, the Russians maintain an efficiency level that gives them "a more professional air force."

LeMay put it this way: while the U.S. Air Force can't get enough men to re-enlist, "the main worry of the Soviet airman is that he might be thrown out into the cold world."

Both witnesses said the Russians are able to keep their trained men in uniform because they make their air force an elite outfit whose officers are among the country's best-paid citizens and enjoy many extra privileges.

OFFERS PLAN

LeMay and Wade joined in proposing a five-point program aimed at keeping more American air officers and men in the service. They urged:

1. A revised pay scale with higher compensation for those with especially valuable skills.
2. Better family housing.
3. Complete medical care for dependents.
4. Expanded commissary and post exchange service.
5. Educational benefits comparable to those conferred on war veterans.

Democrats Face New Farm Fight

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—A new Democratic farm bill, stripped of many features objectionable to the Eisenhower administration, started out today on what still may be a stormy voyage through the House.

It was introduced by Rep. Cooley (D-NC), chairman of the Agriculture Committee, as an "official" Democratic substitute for legislation President Eisenhower vetoed April 16.

The bill contains a soil bank plan but not the authority Eisenhower requested to pay farmers this year for cropland they agree to put in the soil bank next year.

GOP PUSH

Republicans are expected to concentrate on getting this authority into the measure. Eisenhower has suggesed that up to 500 million dollars in advance soil bank payments be distributed among farmers to give them some financial help in the 1956 growing season.

Missing from the Cooley bill are provisions for supporting basic crops at 90 per cent of parity—a proposition Eisenhower refused to accept on the ground it would encourage more surpluses, the major farm headache.

The absence of these provisions, however, will draw fire from some Democrats and result in another fight on the House floor.

NEW BILL

At the same time Cooley dropped his bill in the hopper, Rep. Poage (D-Tex) introduced a bill to give farmers the equivalent of 90 per cent of parity by paying them subsidies covering the difference between that figure and levels at which the government now supports the five major crops.

The Democratic leadership abandoned this "compensatory payments" idea yesterday after Republicans in the House lined up almost solidly against it.

Poage's bill includes all of the vetoed farm bill except the rigid price supports.

The Cooley version drops not only rigid price supports but the dual parity system of computing price levels and two-price plans for wheat and rice, all opposed by the administration.

Atom Ship Building Fund Is Out

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee today disallowed, for the time being at least, an administration request for funds to build an atomic-powered tanker and two other experimental merchant ships.

The committee withheld the 40 million dollars requested for the three ships "pending further advice and consultation" with the House Merchant Marine Committee, which has questioned the Maritime Administration's authority to build the vessels.

The funds disapproved were part of the billion and a half budget requested by President Eisenhower for the Commerce Department and related agencies for the fiscal year starting July 1. The Appropriations Committee trimmed the total down to $1,382,003,000, a proposed reduction of $140,670,000.

Biggest cuts were 98 million of the 295 million requested for maritime activities and 25 million in the 800 million sought for federal-aid highway work.

The $196,847,000 voted for maritime activities included 2¼ million for converting two mariner-type merchant ships for the American President Lines and 40 million for merchant fleet replacement.

Meany Says 2 Parties Too Alike For Either To Win Labor's Vote

The head of the combined AFL-CIO says there is not enough difference between the Republican and Democratic parties to "attract the trade union movement to 'buy' either one" in 1956.

Speaking at the legislative conference of the AFL-CIO Industrial Union Dept. in Washington Friday, President George Meany said:

"We couldn't 'buy' the Democratic Party with their 'Dixiecrats' and their record on civil rights, and we couldn't 'buy' the Republican Party with its subservience to big business."

In 1952 both the AFL and the CIO, then separate organizations, endorsed the unsuccessful Democratic nominee, Adlai Stevenson. Leaders of the 15-million-member combined organization are to meet in June to decide whether a special convention should be called this year to endorse a candidate for 1956.

By the Associated Press

Earlier this week Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers and vice president of the AFL-CIO, said he might bolt the Democratic Party unless it took a forthright stand on civil rights.

Stevenson's campaign manager, James A. Finnegan, said meanwhile that his analysis of last Tuesday's primaries in Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Alaska showed that Stevenson's support "has increased since 1952, while that of both President Eisenhower and Sen. Kefauver has declined."

Finnegan said in a Chicago statement that Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall, in making optimistic interpretations of the primary voting, was "up to his old game of comparing primary returns with general election totals, and some newspapers have been taken in by it."

Hall has described the results in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania as "an overwhelming vote of confidence" in President Eisenhower's record.

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee flew to Washington State for a series of preconvention campaign speeches. He is trying to beat out Stevenson for the Democratic presidential nomination this year.

While Kefauver is campaigning in Washington, Stevenson plans to tour Oregon this weekend.

Back in Washington, D.C., Vice President Nixon attended the regular Friday morning Cabinet session and was congratulated by administration colleagues on his announcement that he will accept renomination on an Eisenhower-Nixon ticket.

Secretary of State Dulles was quoted as expressing gratification that 'the team this year is again going to be Ike and Dick."

Clark for Segregation In the Army

CHARLESTON, S.C., April 27. (AP)—Gen. Mark W. Clark told a luncheon audience today that he opposed integration of white and Negro troops when the policy was adopted by the United States Government at the outbreak of the Korean War. He was at that time commander of U.S. Army field forces.

"I did not feel that we should integrate then (in 1950 when the order was placed in effect)," Clark told the southern regional conference of the Council of State Governments, "and I do not think so now."

BACKS OWN STAND

Later, Clark explained more fully that what he meant was he did not approve of the order to integrate at the time it was issued and he still believes his stand at that time was correct.

The delelates and wives from 14 southern states attending the luncheon at which he spoke roundly applauded the statement.

"From a military point of view," Clark objected to the integration of white and Negro soldiers.

He based his opinion on his experience that while in Italy during World War II "the worst division I had was a Negro division." Clark said that the troops could not be relied on and that the unit bolted in the face of the enemy.

"I looked at it not from the sociological standpoint. . . . I wanted the best fighting unit possible . . . politics or no politics," he said.

LESSER EVIL

The Citadel president told the delegates that the policy decision was to have about one third of each regiment made up of Negro troops. He said they were integrated within the battalions because it was "the lesser of two evils."

It was expedient from a military standpoint, he explained, and there were no social considerations involved. "There we had no schools, no buses and no families to consider."

As for today's racial problems in the South, Clark commented, "I believe in states rights. I believe that problems are best settled where they are best understood."

10 Are Killed In Apartment House Blast

PULASKI, Va., April 27 (AP)—A tremendous explosion and fire wrecked a three-story brick apartment house today, killing 10 persons, including a mother and her three children. Seven others were injured.

The 6 a.m. explosion was touched off when restaurant owner W. J. Mehaffey, 75, struck a match to light a gas water heater. The blast was felt for an area of three blocks around the building.

Mehaffey was hospitalized with extensive burns.

In a short time the apartment house was reduced to a heap of rubble and it was not until late in the afternoon that workmen with earth-moving equipment and picks and shovels recovered the 10th body.

The blast lifted the roof and let it crumple back into the building, said Mrs. Glenn Eller, who was passing by on her way to work at a hosiery mill. "Then it seemed to fall apart."

REBUFF ZARUBIN GO-HOME PLEA

Picking U.S. Forever, 4 Soviet Seamen Say

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—Soviet Ambassador Georgi Zarubin tried to get four Soviet seamen to go back home today but he was told, "Never—we want to stay here forever."

That was the report given by one of the seamen, Michael Ivankov Nikolov, after a dramatic face-to-face confrontation of the ambassador at an Immigration Service hearing.

Ivankov-Nikolov, speaking English in a heavy Russian accent, told reporters to be sure to attend an 11 a.m. hearing of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee tomorrow.

"We tell you everything then," he said.

TOOK ASYLUM

Zarubin spent 1½ hours talking to the four sailors who chose U.S. asylum last fall after their Soviet tanker had been confiscated by Nationalist China.

Five of their shipmates went back to Russia April 7 under circumstances which prompted the State department to expel two members of Russia's United Nations delegation for their role in the affair.

One of the four seamen who talked with Zarubin today was Viktor Solovyev, who told the Senate subcommittee last week all he wants now is a gun for self-defense.

Other witnesses before the subcommittee testified the five seamen who went back to Russia were "kidnaped."

The seamen told American reporters in Moscow that they returned of their own free will.

IMMIGRATION OFFICERS

Zarubin met with the four at his request at the central headquarters of the Immigration Service.

The four men told reporters that Zarubin talked to them separately and together for 1½ hours, trying to get them to return to Russia.

"He told us the five others were happy in Russia," Solovyev said.

"But we told him that the secret police must have made them say the things they said. We know they wouldn't tell such lies on their own."

ROUTINE HEARING

Immigration Service officials said the four seamen were at central headquarters for a "routine hearing."

No reporters were admitted to the hearing, conducted by Ernesto Marquez of the Immigration Service.

Robert Seitz, public affairs officer for the Immigration Service, called it a "routine hearing." He said the four seamen are in parole status and therefore must report to immigration officials for interviews "at regular intervals."

He said the Soviet officials had a right to be present since they represent the government of the country from which the four men defected. However, Seitz indicated that it was unusual to have the meeting at the central headquarters rather than at a branch office.

Also present at the hearing was Jan Van Hoogstratten, official of the Church World Service. This private organization undertook to look after the Soviet seamen when they came to the United States in October 1955.

Spy Greenglass Terms Rosenbergs 'Hypocrites'

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—Convicted atom spy David Greenglass said today his sister and brother-in-law Ethel and Julius Rosenberg, deliberately became martyrs for the "completely erroneous" cause of world communism.

The former Army machinist told the Senate Internal Security subcommittee that such martyrdom is "the most hypocritical thing a person can do."

Greenglass, 34, now serving a 15-year prison term for slipping atomic secrets to the Rosenberg spy ring, said he has at times been sorry he gave the testimony that helped to send the Rosenbergs to the electric chair in 1953.

LOVED THEM

"These were my flesh and blood . . . I felt affection for them," he said haltingly. But he added that the Rosenbergs "could have stopped me at any time if they had told their story . . . but they refused."

Greenglass, who said he told the FBI "the whole story" of his spy activities upon his arrest in 1950, told how his mother visited Ethel in Sing Sing Prison and begged her to follow his example.

"You're not my mother," he quoted his sister as replying. "Leave. I don't want anything more to do with you. You're as bad as Dave."

RECRUITED AS SPY

Greenglass' story was a repetition of the remorse and repentance expressed yesterday by his fellow-spy, Harry Gold. Gold, who received a 30-year sentence, is serving his term in Lewisburg, Pa., Federal Prison.

Greenglass, former foreman of the Los Alamos, N.M., atomic laboratory, told the subcommittee how Julius Rosenberg became his "mentor" in communism and recruited him as a spy.

He said that in June, 1945, he gave Gold, courier for the ring, diagrams of the high-explosive lens molds that were the heart of one type atomic bomb. He said he also furnished a list of 20 or 25 possible spy recruits among scientists at Los Alamos.

He said his belief in communism began to crumble in 1945 when he realized that he was stealing secrets for "devastation on a tremendous scale."

"There came a point where I couldn't overrule what was staring me in the face," he said. "Every belief I had had to be re-examined. I realized I had to run. I tried every way I could to get out from under this entangling web."

He said after he left the Army, Julius Rosenberg urged him to attend college. He quoted Rosenberg as saying the Russians would pay his expenses in order to increase his contacts among atomic scientists. He said Rosenberg told him he was helping several such students.

Rome Fugitive Arrested Here; Bond Is $5,000

A 24-year-old Rome man sought since last October for escaping from the Floyd County jail was arrested by FBI agents here Friday in Blair Village.

Lindsay J. Branton, who escaped Oct. 27, 1955, while facing trial on suspicion of burglary, was arraigned before U.S. Commissioner Ross Arnold and lodged in Fulton Tower in lieu of $5,000 bail.

FBI Agent-in-Charge J. K. Mumford's office said he will be turned over to Floyd County authorities. He was arraigned here on federal charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for burglary.

Plane-Blast Confession Is Accepted

DENVER, April 27 (AP)—Judge Joseph M. McDonald agreed late today to admit as state evidence John Gilbert Graham's confession to the FBI that he bombed an airliner which killed 44 persons.

The ruling was made in Denver District Court after Graham testified, during the absence of the jury trying him for murder, that the confession was false and was made after the FBI threatened to arrest his wife.

JURY RETURNED

Court recessed overnight before the jury was brought back in the box.

"You mean to tell this court you assumed responsibility for 44 deaths because something was said about your wife going to jail?" Dist. Atty. Bert Keating demanded.

"Yes, sir," the defendant replied.

DEATH OF MOTHER

Graham is charged specifically with the death of his mother, Mrs. Daisie E. King, 55, who boarded the airliner at Denver. The state contends he placed a homemade dynamite bomb in his mother's luggage before she boarded the airliner a few minutes before it exploded in the air near Longmont, Colo., last Nov. 1.

The testimony about whether the confession was voluntary disclosed that the discrepancy which led to Graham's questioning came in statements given by himself and his 22-year-old wife, Gloria.

Roy Moore, assistant special agent in charge of the Denver office of the FBI, told the court that Mrs. Graham's statement, given right after the crash, said her husband showed her a bulky package which he described as a Christmas present for his mother, to be placed in her luggage without her knowledge so it would surprise her when she reached Alaska.

PREVIOUS STATEMENTS

She was going to Alaska to visit her daughter, Mrs. Helen Hablutzel.

Graham's statements to FBI agents on two occasions prior to his interrogation as a suspect said there was no Christmas present, Moore told the court.

Heirs Seeking Macfadden's Buried Hoard

DANSVILLE, N. Y., April 27 (AP)—The executors of the Bernarr Macfadden estate have ordered a search of the 40 acres surrounding a hotel here named after the late publisher to determine if money is buried on the grounds.

Executors Edward Bodin and Paul Winkler announced today they are acting to satisfy creditors and Macfadden's widow and a former wife, who claim half a million dollars is buried here.

Bodin said the publisher, who at one time was reputed to have been worth 30 million dollars but who died in debt, had been seen carrying a lunch box and shovel in the wooded section of hotel area here in 1950.

The metal box is supposed to contain 500 thousand-dollar bills wrapped in gol dfoil. Macfadden was quoted as having referred to it as his "golden brick."

Ga. Textile Unit Elects Tichenor

Special to The Constitution

NASSAU, Bahamas, April 27—Henry McD. Tichenor of Monroe, Ga., president of the Walton Cotton Mill Co., has been named president of the Cotton Manufacturers Assn. of Georgia.

Henry Tichenor

Tichenor was named at the closing session of the association's 56th annual convention Friday to succeed Morris M. Bryan Jr., president of the Jefferson Mills, Jefferson, Ga.

Other new officers include George H. Hightower, Thomaston Mills, Thomaston, vice president, and W. C. Vereen Jr., Moultrie Cotton Mills and Riverside Manufacturing Co., Moultrie, treasurer.

T. M. Forbes, Atlanta, was re-elected executive vice president and Frank L. Carter, Atlanta, again was named secretary.

New directors include:

William D. Ellis, Southern Mills, Atlanta; Albert C. Gray, Coats & Clark, Inc., Atlanta; A. J. Strickland III, Strickland Cotton Mills, Valdosta; Winston F. Garth and Harry H. Purvis, both of Chicopee Manufacturing Co., Lumite Division, Cornelia.

P. N. Collier, Calloway Mills Co., LaGrange; J. H. Cheatham Jr., Dundee Mills, Inc., Griffin; Paul K. McKenney Jr., Swift Manufacturing Co., Columbus, and P. L. Shaeffer, Carroll Mills, Carrollton.

Earlier, Paul P. Watkins, attorney and traffic manager of the Georgia-Alabama Textile Traffic Assn., said recent rate increases and proposed rules affecting motor carriers are the most important problems now facing shippers of textile products.

Watkins said several bills pending in Congress vitally affect this phase of industry—including some which he said are more important to shippers and carriers than the so-called Weeks bill.

Panel Rejects Indirect Act To End Slums

The Fulton County Board of Health turned down a regulation change Friday which one board member said might bring about earlier condemnation of some substandard housing.

The regulation change, requested by the slum clearance committee of the Atlanta Board of Aldermen, dealt with operation or erection of pit toilets.

The committee requested a regulation which would forbid erection or operation of pit toilets where water and sewerage is available or where the property would permit installation of septic tanks.

Health officials said, however, they did not believe it feasible to enforce over the entire county a water-borne sewage regulation where city water is available. They added that such a regulation would work a hardship on poor families in rural county areas.

After one board member said that such a regulation might cause earlier condemnation of substandard housing, Board Chairman Dobbs said he questioned whether health regulations should be used for that purpose.

Another official said the department's present regulations would soon solve the pit toilet problem inside the City of Atlanta. Regulations now require connections to sewerage lines within six months after the mains are laid. Since the city is laying 50 miles of such mains yearly, this problem will soon be worked out, he said.

ADDRESSES ATTORNEYS

Counselor Welch

Welch Says 5th Guards Innocent

"Let us never forget that the Fifth Amendment was adopted to protect the innocent," lawyer Joseph N. Welch told the Atlanta Bar Assn. Friday night.

Speaking at the association's annual meeting at the Piedmont Driving Club, Welch said there are still "grave threats to the liberties the Constitution guarantees to us."

PROTECTS INDIVIDUAL

The Fifth Amendment includes the provision that no person shall be compelled to be a witness against himself. It may sometimes be used by the guilty, Welch noted.

But it was added to the Constitution so that no one might be compelled to confess by torture, as had been the practice in earlier times, he said.

"I look with horror on the countries behind the various 'curtains' " where such liberties are denied, Welch said. Americans have the right to criticize the government because the "hopes, dreams and aspirations" of our forefathers "were distilled and put into the Constitution," Welch said.

ARMY COUNSEL

Welch gained national fame as counsel for the Army during the 1954 Army-McCarthy hearings. In an interview earlier in the day here he said the "witch-hunting" of a couple of years ago has eased off and Americans are "looking for the enemy where he is . . . in Russia, and not down the street."

Mrs. Welch, a native of Washington, Ga., had planned to accompany her husband here but is ill in Ft. Pierce, Fla., he said.

GEORGIA ROUNDUP

Pine Tree Festival Sees Parade, Circus, Beauties

The carnival spirit reigned Friday as Swainsboro staged its annual Georgia Pine Tree Festival.

The celebration opened with a parade, moved on to a circus and closed with a square dance.

The parade was led by the military band from Ft. Gordon. It was followed by the Alee Shrine band, four high school bands and floats representing schools, businesses and civic organizations.

The lead float carried this year's queen, high school junior Meredith Jenkins. Also on the float were King Solile Tapley, Princess Patricia Williams and Prince Jimmy Rountree.

Other royalty, crowned by Ernest Rogers, Atlanta Journal columnist, were Nanette Hutchenson, Farm Bureau queen; Charlene Carter and Charles Hutchenson, 4-H queen and king, and Priscilla Morgan and W. A. Gray Jr., princess and prince of the 4-H Club.

Winner in the school division of the float contest was Swainsboro High, which also won the Exchange Club trophy for the best all-class float.

The Swainsboro Exchange Club was first in the organizations division with the Swainsboro Garden Club second and Swainsboro Junior Chamber of Commerce third. Union Bag & Paper Co., Gair Woodland and Sims Piggly Wiggly store won first, second and third in the commercial division.

Bonnie Rose Martin and 3½-year-old Janenna Lawson were judged best in a talent show sponsored by the Farm Bureau.

A circus sponsored by the Shriners was conducted at the edge of town.

The festival is held yearly as a tribute to the pine tree as one of Georgia's most important products.

CITY HALL

Plant Waste As Fire Risk Discussed

By HERMAN HANCOCK

State, city and Fulton County officials Friday sought a solution to disposal of flammable commercial waste, but reached no definite conclusion.

The group met in the office of City Sanitary Engineer Stafford Graydon, discussed the problem and decided to study it further and to meet again at a later date.

One proposal was that the city establish disposal facilities and charge users costs. Another was that George M. McWhirter of the McWhirter Handling Co. be asked to make the investment and dispose of such waste under contract with users.

F. E. Robinson, state fire marshal, initiated the conference because combustible wastes present a peculiar problem and are potential fire dangers.

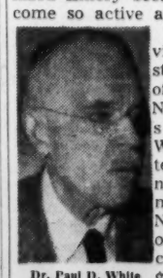

In addition to Graydon and Robinson, John W. Ball, assistant city sanitary engineer; John W. Lemon, Fulton County sanitary engineer; Capt. J. F. Seagraves, assistant city fire marshal, and William E. Tidmore, city smoke abatement engineer, participated in the conference.

Graydon and Fulton leaders promised every cooperation, but they contended disposal of flammable wastes is the responsibility of businesses creating them since they are by-products of commercial operations.

Ike Doctor Lauds City's Facilities

Dr. Paul Dudley White, chief medical consultant to President Eisenhower, here Friday praised Atlanta for its "live wire" medical school and hospitals.

The Boston heart specialist said "Emory and Grady medical facilities have made tremendous advances in the last 25 years" and added that he "hardly recognized Emory because it has become so active and important."

Dr. Paul D. White

In Atlanta to visit medical institutions as part of his work in the National Heart Institute, Dr. White also attended a planning committee meeting of the National Advisory Heart Council to the surgeon general of the Public Health Service.

A wiry little man of 69 with gray eyebrows, mustache and thinning hair, the President's heart consultant said America is becoming one of the more unhealthy countries in the world because of the growing danger of heart disease.

"It is striking persons, particularly of the male sex, at earlier and earlier ages," he said, "and it is quite common to see men suffering from this at 30, 35, 40 and 45 years of age."

He said factors such as age, race and heredity cannot be changed, but "we now have an idea that there are environmental factors which can help us out."

Sen. George Opposes Aid For Aswan

down on the whole foreign aid issue.

"I don't think we should mark time," said the senator. "Rather I think we should go ahead."

He arranged for the beginning of Senate committee hearings on the aid bill for Monday. Secretary of State Dulles will be first witness.

The Senate by constitutional theory and in practice is vastly more influential than the House in foreign policy matters. There was little doubt therefore that George's views would prevail and that there would be no great actual delay in congressional action.

Richards' protests thus were primarily important as a reflection of widespread congressional dissatisfaction with the administration's approach on the issue.

Pointing to recent suggestions by Dulles for further studies of the foreign aid problem, Richards asserted that there had been many studies already and that an almost total "coufusion" now surrounds the administration's intentions.

"I don't know what the President and the administration are talking about," Richards said, "and this is going to make us go slow rather than faster."

From some recent administration statements, he asserted, it would be possible to conclude that some wholly new approach in foreign policy was at hand.

It thus would be well for Congress to await further information before taking any definite step, he said.

The Negro, Marvin Williams, 25, was indicted on a murder charge in the April 20 death of George Eberhardt, 23, of Ben Hill, and on a charge of assault with intent to murder in the wounding of George Williams, 26, of Rte. 1, Ben Hill.

Blacked Out Atlanta Pilot 'Talked' Down

The story of how an Atlanta jet pilot was "talked down" to safety from a "blackout" at 35,000 feet was revealed Friday.

The pilot, 1st Lt. Leroy E. Ward of 1083 Blue Ridge Dr., NE, was stricken with hypoxia, a lack of oxygen, after his supply tank ran empty.

A 25-year-old Tech student and veteran of MIG Alley in Korea, Ward was on a routine training mission with the Georgia Air National Guard over Knoxville last weekend when he was stricken.

An Albany pilot, 1st Lt. Roderick A. Davis, noticed the erratic behavior of Ward's plane and soon discovered Ward was almost unconscious.

Recognizing the symptoms, Davis shouted commands over the radio system. Ward would respond automatically, though he had almost completely lost conscious reactions.

After many trying moments, Davis helped Ward guide his plane down to a safe landing at McGee-Tyson Air Force Base at Knoxville. Ward was given immediate medical treatment and is now recovered.

Griffin Girl Has Pin Taken From Stomach

A hearty laugh caused 13-year-old Mary Ann Baker of Griffin to swallow a straight pin—but she was feeling fine Friday after the pin had been removed from her stomach.

Mary Ann laughed so hard at the antics of a schoolmate that she gulped the pin she was holding in her mouth.

The pin was removed at Ponce de Leon Infirmary in Atlanta through use of a magnet under fluoroscopic guidance.

Mary Ann is the stepdaughter of J. F. Quick, an employe of Dundee Mills in Griffin.

U.S. Wary of Soviet Offer To Ban Arms to Mideast perpetuate the imbalance that is regarded here as the main aggravating factor in the present tension.

Washington and London have been expecting just such a move by the Soviet leaders since the Moscow foreign office, on the eve of their departure for Britain two weeks ago, announced that it would support United Nations peace efforts in the Middle East.

Soviet officials have repeatedly denounced the Baghdad Pact as an effort to flank their southern frontier with a chain of western military bases. This campaign was stepped up when neighboring Iran became a member last October, in defiance of Soviet warnings.

Although it is not an Arab country, Iran presumably would come under any area-wide embargo proposed by the Russians. Washington officials acknowledged that it is the weakest link in the alliance and most urgently in need of military assistance.

According to diplomatic reports on the London conversations, Khrushchev told Prime Minister Eden that the Baghdad Pact was "the major enemy of peace" in the Middle East and repeatedly disclaimed any responsibility for the Soviet bloc arms shipments to Egypt. The contended that Czechoslovakia had entered into this "purely commercial transaction" on its own responsibility as a sovereign state.

wards of Thomasville the sweepstakes trophy for most prize winners.

In the parade competition, first prize among city floats went to a cleverly designed entry from Coolidge, a truck-gardening and watermelon center 14 miles north of here.

The Coolidge float featured an immense papier-mache replica of a slice of ripe, red watermelon with black seeds. It was a "pickaninny" type display and the melon seeds were formed by the charcoal-black faces of children who poked their heads out from inside the huge melon slice.

Moultrie won second prize in the float competition with a quaint entry depicting a 100-year-old farmhouse scene in observance of Colquitt County's centennial year.

Pavo captured third place with a float carrying pretty girls and truck-gardening exhibits. Jacksonville Beach, Fla., with a colorful display of swimsuited beauties, won honorable mention.

Road Bill Presents A Tough Challenge

Congressional approval of a 51-billion-dollar 10-year federal road aid plan now seems assured. While there may be a few changes before final passage by both houses, the outline of the plan now appears fairly clear.

Georgia apparently will be eligible for 198 million dollars in aid during the first three years of the program. How much additional money the state will have to raise to get the maximum still must be determined, but it is obvious that additional state funds would have to be made available.

One really splendid aspect of the plan is the money allocated for the main system of interstate highways through the state. The federal government, according to present interpretations, will foot 90 per cent of the cost of these improvements. A total of $34,900,000 would be available to Georgia from federal funds the first year for these roads.

The state's through highways are still in deplorable condition. U.S. 78 from the Alabama line to the point where it crosses into South Carolina is in a terrible condition. So are a number of our other major thoroughfares. The prospect of improving them is most welcome.

There will be $16,900,000, says the Washington report, made available during the first year for primary, secondary and urban roads in Georgia. These funds will be on a 50-50 basis. Whether the state can match these funds and carry on the present program at the same time is the big question now.

The federal appropriation will be increased to $77,900,000 in its third year of operation.

The project will present a real challenge to the state. It will be the biggest road-building job ever undertaken. There will be terrific competition for engineers, equipment and material on a national scale. More funds must be found for maintenance.

If Georgia and the other states are able to continue their present projects and still take advantage of the new federal aid projects, the nation's highway system will approximate the needs of the nation's economy and the flood of traffic that threatens to choke it.

Theoretically the program is supposed to pay for itself in savings to motorists and in its stimulus to the national economy. Whether it does or not, it recognizes the fact that the country's highway system is a major national problem that must be remedied and paid for by those who use it.

Credit Rating Needed To Enjoy State Parks?

Pledged to the thesis that a state park should bring in money, Georgia has leased many of her public playgrounds to private operators.

Therefore there should be no raised eyebrows at the announcement that the lessee of Vogel State Park has upped the weekly rate for a four-place cabin from $35 to $60.

As the operator explained, the park already is booked for July and August and accommodations there have been improved considerably.

As the lessee, he is operating a private business. Parks department contracts with the lessees ignored a rate structure. Therefore lessees are subject to the law of supply and demand only and cannot be criticized for charging what the traffic will bear.

But somewhere the idea behind the parks has been lost. As state properties, they were not planned as fiscal assets. They were supposed to be places where the common man could play at low cost, paying off in healthier and happier people rather than cash.

It looks like the forgotten man has been forgotten again after a long time in the center of the stage. But don't cuss the lessees. It's not their fault.

Capital Airlines Has Georgia's Best Wishes

Inauguration tomorrow of Capital Airlines' service to New York and other Eastern cities marks another step in recognition of the fact that Atlanta has become one of the most important air terminals in the world.

It will now be served on this route by three major airlines—Eastern, Delta and Capital. The growing demand for service from this region should assure each of them a profitable operation. Each of them enjoys splendid reputations and Atlanta is fortunate to be served by such concerns.

Equipment on all three lines is the best available today. Capital begins service with its modern turbojet Viscounts. Within sight are jet airliners—both Delta and Eastern have announced multimillion-dollar purchases of 500-m.p.h.-plus jet craft to be placed in service within four or five years.

These new craft will carry more than 100 passengers and flight time from Atlanta to New York will be less than two hours.

The growing metropolis of Atlanta is destined to become more and more important as an aviation center. It is gratifying to have these splendid airlines recognize that fact.

We congratulate Capital on inauguration of its new service and wish for the company many long years of pleasant association with Atlanta and the people of this region.

Mission Accomplished, Socialists Fade Away

The Socialist party, once a vigorous and most articulate part of the American political scene, probably will not nominate a presidential candidate this year. It may even haul down its flag and disband.

It is the party of Norman Thomas, who ran six times for president and of the militant Eugene V. Debs. Debs was its founder, was its nominee five times and once polled 900,000 votes running from a prison cell.

Oddly, success ruined the party. Its aims by and large were adopted and made into law by successive Democratic and Republican administrations. Its platform no longer attracts hundreds of thousands of voters, for its most enticing planks later were nailed into the platforms of America's two major parties.

The Socialists were considered revolutionary in their prime. They voiced the hopes of the oppressed and distressed.

These hopes have been translated into fact by the Democrats and Republicans and very, very few consider them socialistic now, even creepingly so.

The demise of militant socialism is a tribute to the American way of doing things and a proof of the advantages of evolution over revolution. Its aims accomplished by reason and not violence, there no longer is any real reason for the party's existence.

The history of the Socialist party here proves the flexibility of the American system.

The system bends, but never breaks, regardless of the strain put upon it and it has been under considerable strain at times.

Future Homemakers Are Most Welcome Here

More than a thousand young women from over Georgia spent two days here during the course of the 11th annual state convention of the Future Homemakers of America.

The group, of high school age, is one of several similar groups of which the nation, the state and the city are fond. The Future Homemakers, like the Future Farmers and the 4-H Clubs, are learning now the steps to successful adult living. In this particular instance, emphasis is on proper home management, a study that will pay rich dividends in the years ahead.

Atlanta is proud of its fame as a convention center but of all the gatherings that occur here annually, it reserves its most sincere greeting to those rallies which draw the youth of Georgia to their capital.

Streets Weren't Meant To Be Used for Storage

Speaking publicly recently, the president of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, A. N. Lockwood, said:

"As a nation we have the greatest degree of mobility in the world, but we haven't taken advantage of it. We can fly from New York to Chicago faster every year, but it is continually taking longer and longer to get from our home to our offices."

Mr. Lockwood went on to say the reason is that cities have let freeways, throughways and expressways compound the congestion by moving more cars downtown, but fewer people.

"Business districts don't need more cars," he said. "They want people on their feet, in a position to shop."

Robert Sommerville, president of the Atlanta Transit Co., said virtually the same thing in a speech here earlier this week.

To city planners, at least, one approach to a solution has long been obvious—an absolute ban on curbside parking in downtown areas. Atlanta has been moving toward that end with the provision of more off-the-street space.

Eventually, we will come to the planners' ideal of fringe area parking, allowing freedom of movement in the business district.

Slowly we're coming to see that streets were meant to carry traffic, not to store it.

Success of the Military Reserve Program Depends on Cooperation of All Americans

Atlanta—The editorial "Military Is a Factor in Career Planning" which appeared in The Constitution was both interesting and timely. It was excellent and from the military viewpoint is the type assistance the military establishment needs in its task of serving the American people.

Since the enactment of the Reserve Forces Act of 1955 in August of last year, my headquarters, the Georgia Military District, on Ponce de Leon avenue, has attempted through all publicity media to bring the provisions of the law to the attention of the youth of Georgia and their parents, to not only eliminate the confusion mentioned in the editorial but to bring before them the opportunity a young man has under the new law to plan his military service rather than leave it to chance.

The meeting in Pierce County, sponsored by the Blackshear Chamber of Commerce, is indicative of the desire for information on the part of the Georgia public for this program. This and other meetings have been stimulated by public-spirited citizens and reservists active in the program.

Much has been done by the headquarters along the line advised in your fine editorial but much remains to be done. More editorials explaining the military obligations of the youth of the country will be most helpful. We are more than pleased to see the problems so well stated in the editorial pages of The Constitution. This is not just the problem of the armed forces, it is the problem of national defense, which is the duty of every American.

BRIG. GEN. R. J. WARREN,
Chief, Georgia Military District.

Editor's Note: The Georgia Military District has been carrying out a commendable program of education throughout the state to familiarize parents, youngsters and the general public with provisions of the 1955 law.

Remember Teen-Agers Are Individuals, Too

College Park—As a teen-ager I am very much dissatisfied with all the publicity about juvenile delinquents. Not only adults, but also teen-agers attempt to classify every act of their fellow human beings (between the ages 13 and 19) as juvenile delinquency, regardless of the importance of the act, the forces causing it or the result. They tend to lump the various actions and actors into a group.

Ike's Veto Clearly Revealed Disregard for Small Farmer

President Eisenhower definitely has the courage of Secretary of Agriculture Benson's convictions. In his message to the American people, the President characterized the new farm bill as a bad bill, but it is generally accepted that its main objection was fixed price supports instead of flexible supports favored by Secretary Benson.

There is no gainsaying the mounting evidence that Secretary Benson is not concerned with the small farmer's plight and sees no future for the small farmer in American agriculture.

But Secretary Benson is not responsible for the nation's agricultural program. It was President Eisenhower who promised farmers 100 per cent of parity when he campaigned for the presidency in 1952. His appointed secretary of agriculture has the responsibility only of administering the administration's farm policies.

The risks we run in retaining an ill President in office, no matter how much we may feel for him in his troubles, may well be reflected in his veto of the new farm bill when American agriculture is at its lowest ebb since "Hoover Days."

The President could not have given the bill the consideration it was due between rounds of golf at Augusta. He almost had to leave its consideration up to Secretary Benson who is imbued with the big-farm school of thought.

Since World War I there has been a trend toward large-scale farming with many agricultural leaders seeing the decline of the small family-type farm as inevitable. No consideration is given to the social advantages inherent in the family farm by Benson and other advocates of large-scale, assembly-line farming.

It is not likely that the trend toward large-scale farming will be materially diminished, but as the small farmer makes his transition to more intensive methods of cultivating his small acreage or seeks adjustment through industrial opportunities, it seems to us that it is the obligation of the administration in power to help him over the hurdles he faces. President Eisenhower by his veto has indicated that he either cares too little for the small farmer or has no real understanding of the problems the small farmer faces.

We are inclined to think he is lacking in understanding and that he was persuaded to veto the bill by Secretary Benson, but if this is true it is even more reason for his defeat this year. We would never question his integrity or his courage, but we would prefer that he have the courage of his own convictions and not the courage of Secretary Benson's convictions.

As told by two Doctors of Divinity, Gabriel and Elisha were playing golf on, I suppose, the ethereal course. Elisha made a beautiful drive right down the fairway. Gabriel sliced his ball into the rough. It ploughed through some rocks, hit a tree and then bounced right back onto the green. When they came up to the ball, Gabriel said to Elisha: "Now see here, Elisha, cut out the miracles and let's play golf!"

Steam Engines Hard to Find

Mr. Emory Milton Ivie is in the market for a steam engine. Mr. Ivie is the retired railroader who has been working singlehanded to get the City of Atlanta to set up a modern steam locomotive as an exhibit in a park, possibly Piedmont. Just as he is getting some of the aldermen to lean his way, he finds that an engine for exhibit purposes will not be too easy to come by.

The Ivie eye was on a locomotive in the Southern shops at Alexandria, Va. But already there is a tag on that engine. It has been consigned to the Smithsonian Institution.

Only 5,000 steam locomotives are left in existence today as compared to 39,000 only a few years ago. Of the engines extant, 275 have escaped the cutting torch of the scrap dealer and are displays in parks and museums from Waterville, Maine, to San Diego, Calif.

Atlantans steamed up about a locomotive display would prefer getting the engine from a railroad serving the area. If those fail, there is still the Rock Island Line.

CASE OF TIMING: A young lady has come forward with what seems a just complaint about the Atlanta curfew. She lives in the northeast quadrant of the city; her boy friends lives in the southwest sector. She avers that for him to be home by midnight, he must kiss her goodby at 11 o'clock. There should be an allowance, she thinks, for travel time.

SHORT SUBJECT: The tornado in the Birmingham area two weeks ago blew a doctor's bill marked "Paid" from Sayreton, Ala., 150 miles to a farm four miles north of LaFayette, Ga.

The long carry suggests the story of the fellow who stood at the corner of Peachtree and Cain in Atlanta and remarked, "That cloud yonder looks just like the one did the day the big blow hit my hometown in Alabama."

"Was it a bad blow?" a bystander asked.

"You don't think I came here of my own free will, do you?" the Alabaman replied.

Trees, Like People, Need Each Other

Two oaks and a pine tree stand in my back yard, growing close together. For 16 years I have watched them grow, and I have come to the conclusion that trees, like people, need space and light and air to grow strong and tall and well-rounded. Jammed together, they drain strength from each other, fight each other for their share of the rain, the sun, the air. They weaken each other, just as people, jammed together in slums weaken each other.

An oak tree growing alone is a mighty tree, strong of limb, wide spreading, a complete tree as God made it. A pine tree growing alone is a noble tree. Its great branches grow low to the ground. It spreads and shelters a wide space. Alone, it stands proud and free and sturdy.

The trees that grow in my back yard are misshapen by each other, as men are misshapen when they live too close together. They are spindly trees. On the inward side there are no branches. The tall-growing pine shades the lower limbs of the oaks. They put out, grow a year or two, die and rot and fall.

The pine tree offers no limbs on the side next to the oaks. Yet each tree, on its outer side, the side that does not encroach upon its neighbors, puts out fine branches, casts a happy shade over a great space.

For years I brooded over the problem of whether it is better to grow one fine tree rather than three weaker ones. But which to cut? Should I take down the oaks and leave the pine? Or take an oak and the pine away and leave one oak alone? With the householder's usual reluctance to cut a tree, I did neither. And now I'm glad.

For in time of storm I've watched the trees in battle with the wind. And each gave support to the other. The tall pine, bending, leaned against the oaks and did not break. The oaks' limbs, tortured by the storm, found the pine's trunk holding them like a steady hand. And deep in the earth the tangled roots, interlocking, clung together to the rocks and hard-packed clay.

Just like people in the mass, I guess, who compete and struggle and drain strength from each other; but when trouble comes they lean together, each on each.

Says Estes Kefauver: Florida's primary will indicate the South's path of politics for 1956 insofar as the Democratic nomination for president is concerned.

Don't Limit Worship To Church Service

We usually locate the worship of God in a specifically designated and dedicated shrine or building. That, however, limits our worship too much in terms of places and seasons or location and time. Worship is more of an attitude than it is a formal ritual and more of an awareness of God's presence than it is a routine. We ought to have great concepts of the possibilities of worship, great enough to match the greatness of God.

A man worships when he lives in the presence of God. We do not find God only in a hallowed place like a church. God is with us wherever we are, whether at work or play, at home or abroad. God is inescapable although we may not individually be aware of His presence. That man lives a life of worshipful experiences then who is ever conscious that he shares his joys and sorrows, his labors and his recreations with a loving and concerned Father. In church he worships God, but not in church only.

The words for worship in the Bible suggest a double meaning. Generally the word means to serve and to labor. The man who serves God is a worshipper. A second word means to bow down or to prostrate oneself before God. The first word seems to me to mean a mood of worship, that of serving God in and through all of life's manifold experiences. The second word tells of an act of worship, that of showing through ritual man's creaturehood in contrast to God's creatorship. Both aspects are important and essential.

Of the two forms of worship I should judge laboring for God in life's routine experiences to be the more difficult. When we attend church worship services we are led in prayer and praise and we are bolstered by those who share the experience with us. There are few distractions as we concentrate on the worship of God through the scriptures and hymns and sermonic expositions.

But if we are to continue our worship beyond the portals of the church, we shall immediately be tested by the distractions and many contradictions of the world. We shall meet with those who not only do not share our faith but who also may well criticize it. Along the paths of the world a worshipper must find that which makes his thought and behaviour consistent with the blessing and benediction which he found in church worship.

Well, how can we retain the mood of worship when we are far from the room of worship and God's holy altar? I think the best guarantee is to take the words of the worship service along with us wherever we go. To recite quietly the words of scripture and to repeat to ourselves the verses of a favorite hymn when we are working or playing will serve as a constant reminder that worship is more than the participation in a worship service; it is also the dedication of life to the service of God.

Hours Pass Slowly If Confined to Bed

This is a report from The Constitution's counterpane correspondent, who finds himself able to hobble to the typewriter after 10 days abed. The only problem after arriving here is what does one put on paper after days away from all that's going on? My heart goes out to all who are ill and to all who are invalid. Staying in bed is quite a problem. Those who have been there for some time probably know all the short cuts, all the ways to fill the limping hours.

We amateur bed-stayers have a terrible time.

Of course it is nice to pick up the paper and find everything in it is news. When one works helping to put the paper out, reading it in the morning is something in the nature of a review. My own private system is to save the sports and the comics to read in the morning, also some of the local stories. Using this method I at least have something to read. Now that I've been away a few days, the entire paper is a revelation.

But one can't read the paper all day, even counting the crossword puzzle. Reading gets rather tiresome after a time anyway. There are magazines and books and one reads and reads.

The baseball fan is lucky. While abed he can do away with a fourth of the day listening to baseball. There is the major league game in the afternoon, and at night the Crackers are on the air. The two games add up to about six hours of listening and that's a big bite.

Becoming accustomed to the mannerisms of the announcers is interesting, too. After a time, one can determine by the manner an announcer describes the flight of a ball whether or not the chances are fairly good it will land beyond the grasp of a hurrying outfielder.

Friends dropping in is one of the biggest boons for making the day go by. After finding out how enjoyable such visits are, I've made a resolution to put in more time with the ailing. Of course, there are times when people can't have visitors and there are other times they feel so rough they can't appreciate them. But I imagine those times are only a fraction of the bed-hours of the ill.

After one is on his feet again and can putter around, the real bad part of being sick is gone. It's that twisting and turning and tossing time that's unnerving. The senses, lying there in a captive body, get tired of confinement. But — as they say — it's one of those things.

And I had to get up anyway. One of the children and the wife got the mumps. And that raised the horizontal population to an absurd level.

Marciano Hangs 'Em Up After Unbeaten Ring Career

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—Rocky Marciano retired today as heavyweight champion of the world, unbeaten in his 49 pro fights, to spend more time with his wife and baby daughter at his Brockton, Mass., home.

If Rocky can resist the lure of a comeback, he will be the only unbeaten heavy titleholder ever to quit without losing a pro fight or even boxing a draw. Gene Tunney made it stick when he stepped down in 1928, but he had been beaten earlier in his career by Harry Greb. Jim Jeffries, a non-loser when he retired, tried to come back and was knocked out by Jack Johnson. Joe Louis also failed in a comeback attempt.

Marciano, who admitted he will be 33 on Sept. 21, said he weighed only 212 pounds, about 23 over his normal fighting weight. He insisted physical condition had nothing to do with his decision to stop fighting.

"I am retiring because of my wife and Mary Anne (his 3½-year-old daughter)," said Marciano at a hastily called news conference after his wife, Barbara, already had released the news to Vic Dubois, sports editor of the Brockton (Mass.) Enterprise. "Actually I feel good. I still have some good fights left in me."

"My mother never did want me to fight," said Rocky. "My decision puts her very much at ease. My father always liked boxing but he's happy to see me quit.

"Barbara has been after me to quit for some time. After the Don Cockell fight (in San Francisco, May 16, 1955) we spent a month together in Mexico. She did a lot of talking about our not being together and how I had to be introduced to the baby every time I went home. I never spent more than two weeks in a row at home.

"Even before the Archie Moore fight (his last match, Sept. 21, 1955) I was thinking about retirement. After the fight I really began to consider it seriously. I think I would be taking advantage of my family if I tried to fight anymore. At first, I was single. It didn't make any difference then. But the baby makes a lot of difference."

In the ring, Marciano was a scowling, crag-faced man with a nervous habit of licking his lips while he destroyed an opponent. But it was Rocky, the family man, who was making this decision today.

Who did Marciano think should succeed him as champion? Rocky named three men—Archie Moore, Floyd Patterson and Hurricane Jackson—as possibilities.

"Moore I happen to know about because I fought him," he said. "He's a good tough man, punches good and takes a good punch. The others I've seen on television. Patterson seems to be getting a big boost from everybody. And the Hurricane has a good chance."

Ring Magazine's latest ratings show Moore as top contender followed by Jackson, Bob Baker of Pittsburgh, John Holman of Chicago and Johnny Summerlin of Detroit. The NBA quarterly ratings put Jackson behind Marciano followed by Baker, Nino Valdes of Cuba with "honorable mention" to Holman, Summerlin and four others. They rate Moore only as a light-heavy.

As for the future, Marciano was vague.

"I've got a lot of nice things that are going to happen to me," he said. "I have an offer out in Holland, Mich., where I trained for the second Jersey Joe Walcott fight but I haven't decided anything yet. Al (Manager Al Weill) has some very good offers. First, I want to go home to Brockton and meet the baby again. Maybe I'll take up a little golf and root for the Red Sox.

"I never really had time of my own," he said. "I've always had something I had to do, fighting or outside."

Marciano defended his title six times after winning it by knocking out Jersey Joe Walcott in the 13th round of a thrilling bout at Philadelphia, Sept. 23, 1952. He knocked out Walcott in

Crackers Get Invited Out

It is safe to guess that Earl Mann will not transplant any Cracker home games from Ponce de Leon gardens to South Carolina, Tennessee or Tokyo this season. You may be reasonably assured, however, that he was—and is—giving serious consideration to such a project, contrary to embittered reports by an uninformed newspaper source.

It is something more than the ridiculous situation Eddie Glennon of Birmingham was baited into making of it. When Steve Kelly called Mann from Greenville, S.C., suggesting a Cracker "home" game there, with a guaranteed 5,000 gate, Mann immediately seized upon the idea as a means of selling Southern Association baseball to the surrounding territory.

Bisher

In one contradictory report, Mann is quoted as saying: "I gave it no serious consideration."

In the next paragraph of the same report, Mann is quoted as saying: "The proposition from those Carolina towns is something to consider." Actually, he was approached only by Greenville people.

It is significant that these crossed wires lead to the desk of a newspaper employe who this week personally awarded Sammy Meeks unqualified possession of the position of third base for the Crackers the day before Meeks was moved to shortstop.

This report further quoted Mann as saying, "I've never discussed with him (Joe Engel) the possibility of an Atlanta-Chattanooga game in Knoxville." This was absolutely true. So was a report in The Constitution that "I'm going to talk to Joe Engel."

So Thursday afternoon Mann talked to Joe Engel about the possibility of playing a regular season game in Knoxville.

—Engel Moved for Half a Season

"Joe mentioned to me that the Knoxville people had been trying to get him to play a game there," Mann said. "'Would you take the Crackers over there and play us?' Joe asked me.

"I said, 'Sure, I will. Have you forgotten that you moved to Montgomery, Ala., for the whole last half of one season?' I asked Joe.

"He said, 'I sure haven't, but I wish I could.' I don't know what will come of all this, but it is something more than a matter of conversation. I have no intention of running out on Atlanta fans. This is just a new departure in baseball that merits some serious thought. I'm sure that with warm weather, the fans will be back at Ponce de Leon in championship numbers."

One answer to the attendance depression appears to be wrapped up in the weather. Some 10,000 were willing to sit at Grant Field to watch an out-of-season Tech intrasquad football game, but the same 10,000 would have been shivering from dandruff to calluses, and kindling fires in the stands at a baseball game.

It's not that the football breed is hardier. It's merely the state of mind, as in the case of the athletes' apparel at a basketball game or a track meet. They wear no more than men's underwear, but it passes under the label of uniform, and so no one is embarrassed at the state of near nakedness.

—Stopwatch Nails Down the Pitcher

There is no blanket key to the droop in attendance. It's not the weather alone. It's not television alone—not just game telecasts, but the appeal of the general programming. Some of it, I'm sure, is the early season length of games. It's an event these days when a game is played inside of two hours, almost as much an event as the final score.

A newspaperman in Cleveland has thrown the blame for slow games squarely into the laps of the pitchers. He took a stopwatch out to the Cleveland-Chicago opener and timed the pitchers holding the ball one hour and one minute of a two-hour and four-minute game.

A few days later, the reporter caught the pitchers holding the ball two hours and one minute while the Indians and Detroit took three hours and 16 minutes to play a game. The location is of significance, for General Manager Hank Greenberg has offered the Indians $100 for each game played in two hours or under.

The pitcher is the man who controls the pace of the game. Two hurry-up workers, such as Dick Grabowski and Jim Atkins two weeks ago, can get a crowd out of the park and home at a respectable hour. Two dawdlers can keep the crowd at bay until curfew, juggling the resin bag, tightening their belts, rubbing up the ball, tugging at their shirts, threatening base runners, clawing at the mound and leaning over to get the signal.

It is true, nevertheless, that wherever the Crackers may choose to play, these prolongations will go along. This apparently has been an incurable circumstance developing since the first curve ball was thrown by a stocky, right-handed member of the Neanderthal A.C.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 27 (AP)—Nine Kentucky Derby candidates face the barrier tomorrow in The Swaps, a feature of opening day at Churchill Downs.

The six-furlong race, named for last year's Derby winner, attracted Ben A. Jones, Manasas, Count Chic, Fleet Peet, Terrang, Dark Toga, Come On Red, Swoon's Son and Mark's Rickey. Mark's Rickey finished sixth yesterday in the Blue Grass stakes at Keeneland.

Also on the opening card is the $10,000 added Oaks Prep with a field of 11, including Caliborne's Doubledogdare, winner of the Ashland Stakes at Keeneland.

Meeks' Socks Wasted As Crackers Fall, 11-8

Lowly Travs Rout Tosheff

By JESSE OUTLAR

Sammy Meeks drove in five runs Friday night, but lowly Little Rock worked over five Atlanta pitchers for an 11-8 decision in a three-hour and 19-minute wrangle at Ponce de Leon park.

Meeks mauled his third homer in as many nights, doubled, singled and walked before the Travelers finally retired him in the seventh. He had reached first safely seven straight times before reliefer Andy Pane fanned him.

However, Meeks' booming bat wasn't enough to offset inept pitching which, mixed with a wretched fielding, has dumped the Crackers into the second division.

When Bill Tosheff departed in the third, it marked the 14th time in 17 games that a Cracker hurler has failed to finish what he started.

Before the last of the 3,461 Ladies Night fans departed — most of 'em left early—the weak-hitting Travelers had pounded out a dozen hits.

Manager Steve Souchock started his club toward its fifth triumph in 17 games with a grand-slam homer in the first. But the Crackers battled back, went ahead and eventually wound up 8-8 in the sixth.

Loose fielding by Atlanta and hitless relief hurling by southpaw Pane for the final four frames packaged it for Little Rock.

Pane, who rescued Hooks Iott with one run in, one on and none out in the sixth, slammed the door on the Crackers, who soaked up their seventh defeat in 11 showings at Poncey. Pane also singled in the winning run in the seventh.

Meanwhile, the Travelers stamped the defeat on Andy Bratkowitz in the seventh. Bratkowitz, who brought a scoreless skein of 12 innings in relief on in the sixth, was the victim of miserable backing.

With two down in the fatal seventh, Andy Frazier bounced a single off Bill Gabler at first and Dan Prentice walked. Pane then spanked a single into center, which squirted past Jack Daniels for a two-base error. Both runners crossed and Pane motored to third, from where he counted when Frank DiPrima errored on John Jones' bouncer.

That provided the Travelers with the final 11-8 edge, as Pane chopped down the last seven Crackers in order.

After Souchock unloaded his four-run wallop in the first, Meeks went into action with a tremendous 400-foot smash in the Cracker half. Gabler then drove a Hugh Blanton gopher over the top tier in right for a 4-4 knot in the second.

The Travelers bounced back with two in the third, mixing

'Hungry' Youths Cram Lineups For Bulldog G-Day Tiff Today

Reds Favored On Experience

By LARRY FOX
Constitution Sports Writer

ATHENS, April 27—The eagerness of young athletes out to impress will be the theme Saturday when the favored Red team battles the Whites in Georgia's annual G-Day football game. Kick-off at Sanford Stadium is 3 p.m.

Breaking down the two squads for the windup of spring practice, you find only 16 juniors and seniors among the 66 players who will dress out. The Reds will have three seniors, six juniors, 21 sophomores and one freshman. The Whites will field four seniors, three juniors, a whopping 27 sophomores and one freshman.

The large number of young players who will take the field is what leads Head Coach Wally Butts to predict, "We will be better and have done better this spring than may show out there Saturday. We have not had a chance to do any real polishing. We have worked on fundamentals and built for the future."

Only three sophomores have broken into the veteran Red team's starting lineup, finally firmed up after two days of rest have given Butts and trainer Sam Richwine a chance to evaluate all the late injuries. Riley Gunnels will open at left tackle, Gene Littleton at left half and Mike Anderson, who was held out last year, will be the left guard. The only other newcomer will be center Harold Deen Cook, regular as a freshman two years ago who was ineligible last season. He is now a junior.

The Whites will open with six and possibly seven sophomores. The doubtful point is left tackle where senior John Luck, weakened by the flu, may start, but will see only token service before giving way to sophomore Bob Sedlock.

Other sophomores are left guard Vernon Cunard, center Dick Price, right tackle Nat Dye, right end Bill Watkins, quarterback Charlie Byars and fullback Theron Sapp. Sapp and Watkins were held out last season.

G-Day, combined this year with Georgia's Alumni Day, will start at 9:30 a.m. when the football players and Georgia ROTC bands will make up the bulk of a parade downtown. At 10, ex-Gov. Herman Talmadge will speak to alumni. Starting at noon, alumni can partake of a barbecue lunch at the stadium. Before the game, newly inducted members of the Wall of Fame, Vernon (Catfish) Smith, Johnny Rauch and Spec Towns will be presented to the fans. And at the half, the Georgia band will offer a musical salute to the cities of Atlanta, Athens, Brunswick, Columbus and Savannah.

Kickoff at 3 Caps Big Day

SMITH, TOWNS, RAUCH

Three Ex-Bulldogs Added to 'The Wall'

By DAN KITCHENS
Special to The Constitution

ATHENS, April 27—Four feet, a golden arm and three names were added to the Bulldog Wall of Fame here Friday night.

The feet and arm belong, of course, to the names that have lived in the memories of Georgia supporters over the past 27 years. Vernon (Catfish) Smith, now an Air Force colonel and Forrest (Spec) Towns and Johnny Rauch, currently University of Georgia coaches.

Both Smith and Towns reached fame through winged feet. The Catfish's speed and spirit gained him a berth on the 1931 all-America football team, while Towns won the 120-yard high hurdles at the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin.

Rauch won the starting quarterback position at Georgia as a freshman and kept it for four years, starting in four straight bowl games, 1945-46-47-48. During his career he generalled the Bulldogs to two conference championships and an unbeaten, untied season in 1946.

Rauch owned a great passing arm and he twirled his way to all-America recognition in 1948.

Bob McWhorter, himself a Wall of Famer, presented the awards and recounted feats of the honorees.

He called them "flaming competitors" and said, "They reflected fame and glory on themselves and their alma mater and were a credit to the sports in which they so magnificently excelled."

Abit Nix, a turn-of-the-century Bulldog graduate and Athens attorney, introduced McWhorter.

PLAY BETTER GOLF

—by Tommy Armour

TREMENDOUSLY important to a good golf shot is correct foot placement. In Fig. 1 we see the correct position of the feet (with relation to the ball and the direction line) for the drive. It is a "closed" stance (right foot behind the direction line) and the ball is opposite the left heel. Long iron shots (Fig. 2) call for a "square" stance (both feet on the direction line) and the ball in mid-position. Short iron, or pitch, shots call for an "open" stance (left foot behind the direction line) and the ball farther back toward the right heel. Note that, as you go from the longer to the shorter shots, your stance narrows and you stand closer to the ball.

(These lessons appear Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday in your Constitution.)

Spencer's Home Run Nets 5-3 Triumph for Giants

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—Daryl Spencer followed Foster Castleman's leadoff double in the sixth inning with his second home run of the season to break a tie and give the New York Giants a 5-3 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies tonight.

Allan Worthington, after a wobbly start, settled down to pitch a strong six-hitter for his first victory of the season. The big right-hander permitted only six hits, three after the second inning and struck out nine.

Hearn Wins Sixth, 11-2, From Wofford Terriers

Special to The Constitution

ATHENS, Ga., April 27—Strong-armed Billy Hearn threw a smooth five-hitter at the visiting Wofford College Terriers on Ag Hill Friday and in so doing ran his season record to six wins against no losses.

Billy Hearn

The Eatonton sophomore's mates backed him with an 11-hit attack that produced 11 runs to the South Carolinians' two, leaving the Bulldogs with a 15-4 record to date.

Strong throughout the game, Hearn walked five Terriers and struck out seven.

The Georgians jumped off to a two-run margin in the first inning, while the visitors could not score until the fifth when they marked up one. However, the Bulldogs came right back and ran up three in their half of the fifth, and were never in danger, although Wofford scored a lone run, their final, in the sixth.

A five-run splurge in the sixth by the Bulldogs cinched the outcome as Hearn zeroed the visitors the final three innings.

fly with the bases loaded for a two-run error.

The Crackers then nosed out front in the fourth when Meeks singled for his fourth RBI, but Norm Chandler, who had replaced Tosheff, failed to protect the lead. A triple by Jones in wake of Iott's single and R. C. Otey's, hit through the middle rang up two runs in the sixth.

Bratkowitz then put down the rally, but ran into trouble as the Travelers plucked the victory in the seventh. Final Cracker run crossed in the sixth and, of course, it was Meeks who doubled it home with a shot past first.

Terry Fox finished up for the Crackers and held the Travelers at bay for the final two innings, but Pane had the Crackers under tight control.

Vic Rehm will hurl for Atlanta in the second of the three-game set Saturday night. He'll be opposed by Charley Fowler.

CRACKER DIARY: With 34 errors in 17 games, the Crackers are taking aim at Chattanooga's all-time mark of 345 established in 1921 . . . . "Everyone's dern glad to see us these days," replied Souchock, whose club had dropped 12 of 16 games.

one round in a rematch, stopped Roland La Starza in 11, whipped Ezzard Charles by decision in 15 and then knocked out Charles in eight rounds in another rematch. In his last two bouts, he stopped Britain's Don Cockell at San Francisco, and knocked out Moore at Yankee Stadium, each in the ninth round.

Only six opponents went the route with him in 49 pro fights. He was knocked down twice, the first time in his first match with Walcott and the last time in his final bout with Moore.

Although there are only estimates on some of his early bouts, it was believed his purses totaled about $1,700,000, before manager's cut and taxes.

Asked how he stood financially, Marciano said "I'm not afraid of the future. I'm comfortable. I'll be able to do all right."

Marciano's retirement, of course, threw the heavyweight class into a wild turmoil. Before the ink was dry on the first newspaper announcement, Charley Johnston, the manager of Moore, was claiming the title.

Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club who attended Marciano's news conference with manager Weill and trainer Charlie Goldman, said he planned an elimination tournament.

The first bout of the eliminations already had been scheduled before today's announcement. Baker boxes Holman at Miami, May 9. Norris is working on a bout between Jackson and Patterson.

Tunney, Jeffries Had Blemished Pro Records

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—The list of men who were unbeaten when they won the heavyweight championship shows only two names—Jim Jeffries and Rocky Marciano. Jeffries, however, had been held to two draws, while Marciano won all of his 49 pro fights.

Jeffries retired as unbeaten champ, Aug. 26, 1904 but was induced to come back against Jack Johnson, July 4, 1910 and was knocked out in 15 rounds.

Gene Tunney retired unbeaten in 1928 but he lost to Harry Greb as a light heavy. Joe Louis quit without defeat but lost to Ezzard Charles and Marciano in a comeback and also had been knocked out by Max Schmeling before he won the title.

Susce Beats Tech In Hill Thriller, 1-0

Patton Victim of Clutch Hit By Plainsmen's Roberson

Special to The Constitution

AUBURN, Ala., April 27—Auburn's Paul Susce, wearing pressure like a suit of armor, stopped Georgia Tech, 1-0, here Friday afternoon for his third shutout of the season.

The big, blond right-hander struck out nine Jackets and walked four as he posted his seventh victory against one loss.

The Tiger story wasn't all Susce, however. An airtight defense in the clutch, plus a timely double by a shortstop who acquired his basic baseball training under New York Yankee Billy Martin, shared equal parts in the triumph.

And the game story wasn't all Auburn. Tech's Bob Patton saw to that, allowing only four hits off right-handed serves. He fanned two and walked three.

The teams continue their SEC series with a double-header Saturday, starting at 1 p.m. (CST). Auburn't starting pitcher's will be chosen from left-hander Wynton Overstreet, Herbie Pearce and John Martin. Jack Jordan and Danny MacGregor are likely Tech starters.

Auburn now stands 7-5 in the SEC and 10-7 over-all, while Tech's record reads 3-7 and 8-8.

Friday's lone run came in the third inning. Alton Shell beat out infield single, moved to second on Capt. Guy Young's sacrifice and scored on shortstop Billy Ray Roberson's ringing double off the left-field fence.

Experience that money can't buy!

A man doesn't advance very far or very fast from experience alone . . . that experience must be coupled with professional development and recognition by superiors . . . and a man who is only "holding his own" while others are advancing is actually losing ground.

Professional development is dependent upon many factors:

A. Association with recognized technical leaders.
B. Recognition of individual contribution through merit review, publication of technical papers and technical society membership.
C. Participation in management decisions and planning.
D. The availability of a continuing formal educational program.
E. The guidance of a young, technically trained management.
F. A flexibility of operation where you can plan your use of time.
G. A major responsibility rather than a minor detailed job.

At Univac,® you will learn and grow with the men who evolved much of the basic knowledge of computers . . . who designed and produced components being used by other manufacturers in the field . . . who set the standards that the others follow . . . THIS is the opportunity and the experience that money can't buy. All of these positions offer a unique opportunity for advancement because of Univac's expansion . . . our present facilities are running to capacity . . . new plants and laboratories are under construction.

NOW is the time to come to Remington Rand Univac where ambition and professional skill find their reward . . . advancement comes quickest in an expanding organization.

Sanders Leads At Tallahassee

Compiled From Wire Reports

Bill Hyndman, 40-year-old Abington, Pa., insurance man, put an end to Jake Howard's dreams of taking the North and South Amateur golf crown back to Athens, Ga., at Pinehurst (N.C.) Country Club Friday afternoon.

The Pennsylvanian whipped the 20-year-old University of Georgia golf team co-captain, 3 and 2, to gain Saturday's 36-hole finals against Hillman Robbins of Memphis, Tenn.

Sports in Brief

MORE GOLF: Doug Sanders, Cedartown, Ga., native now living in Miami, Fla., took a nine-stroke lead in the Florida State Amateur at Tallahassee. Sanders, who won the North and South qualifying medal and then rushed to Tallahassee after being eliminated in the second round at Pinehurst, has a 36-hole total of 65-66-131. Defending champion Don Bisplinghoff was 15 strokes back. . . . Ben Hogan ended speculation over his plans for the U.S. Open. He filed entry for the '56 championship with the USGA.

Patty Berg, who fired a 67 Thursday, soared to a 77 Friday but managed to retain a share of first place at the halfway point in the $5,000, 72-hole Peach Blossom-Betsy Rawls Open invitation tournament at Spartanburg, S.C. She and Betty Jameson are tied at 144s. Louise Suggs of Atlanta has 148. . . . California's Gene Littler stretched his lead to four strokes in the Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas. BASEBALL: Red Murff, the Milwaukee Braves' high-priced, 34-year-old rookie right-hander, underwent X-rays to determine cause of his back miseries. . . . Pittsburgh Pirates placed outfielder Jerry Lynch and catcher Harding Peterson on the disabled list, gave bonus pitcher Paul Martin his outright release, and announced that scouting supervisor George Sisler would join the club as batting coach. . . . Northside, Marietta Win Track Crowns

Keen Sets Pole Vault Record In 3-AA, 4-AA Meet at Grady

By MICKEY LOGUE

Northside and Marietta high schools won team honors handily in Region 3-AA and 4-AA track finals at Grady Stadium Friday night, but the battles for individual laurels were as close as Siamese twins.

Coach Floyd Anderson's Northsiders, paced by sprinter Brannon Lesesne, totaled 35 points to take 3-AA's first place. Following in order were O'Keefe, 27; North Fulton, 27; Sylvan, 11; Roosevelt, 10; Smith, 10; Brown, 8; Grady, 5; Fulton, 5; Murphy, 5, West Fulton, 5; Bass, 4, and Southwest, 2.

The Tigers also sealed the City League championship, which includes dual meets and finals. Other 3-AA schools finished in exactly the same sequence in that race.

Bill McCampbell's Marietta cindermen led 4-AA with 34½. Griffin, with Joe White taking the high and low hurdles, scored 25 to edge Decatur (24¾) and Rossville (24) for the No. 2 trophy.

Other 4-AA points went: Russell, 21¾; Cedartown, 20¼, and Rome, 3¾.

Here's how the individual fireworks developed:

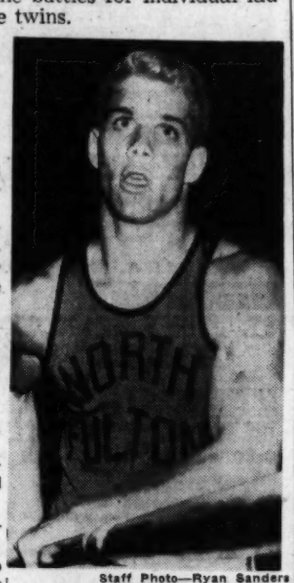

North Fulton's Ted Keen, who never before had reached 12 feet in inter-squad competition, followed a 12-foot pole vault with a 12-foot, three-inch effort to shatter the 3-AA record. Former Murphy athlete Gene Purcell held the old mark of 12-2¼.

Lamar Echols of Smith hurled the javelin 169 feet, 7 inches, breaking the old Grady Stadium record of 166-6 set by Graham Bell of Bass in 1950.

Decatur's Ken Winn, who has about recovered from a broken foot, drew the biggest ovation of the night when he broke the 4-AA mile tape all alone with a 4:40.8 clocking.

However, West Fulton's Milton Wheeler, who took up track this season after moving from Des Moines, Iowa, earned his share of cheers with a 4:46.9 mile time in the 3-AA heat.

Bobby Farmer of Brown pulled a real 440-yard dash shocker, scooting the lap in 51.8, better than two seconds faster than he'd ever done it in his life. This is

PRO ELMER REED TALLIED WINNING CARD
Airlines Pilot Still Flying High In Atlanta Open

Reed's 144 Leading Atlanta Open Field

Dahlbender's 70 Friday's Lowest

By BERT PRATHER

Elmer Reed was up in the air until the wee hours of Friday morning but he had his feet solidly on the ground Friday afternoon at Capital City Country Club where he shot an even par 38-33—71 to retain first place in the Atlanta Open with a 36-hole total of 44.

Reed, who flies the Atlanta-Boston run for Eastern Air Lines, put his big liner down at Atlanta Municipal Airport at 3 a.m. Friday morning, which left him about six hours to grab a spot of sleep before tee-off time at Capital City.

After the first nine, which he finished with a two-over-par 38, Elmer figured maybe he was working on too tight a schedule for golf. But he got in the groove on the back nine, getting the two strokes back with an eagle three on No. 12. A fine six-iron shot into the green left him only a three-foot putt for the two-stroke saver.

Reed, who tok the opening-round lead in this 54-hole stroke play tournament with a 73 over the tough Peachtree course, now moves into Monday's final round at Standard Town and Country Club with a two-stroke lead over young James Williams, Capital City assistant pro who added a 71 to his first round of 75 for a 146.

Big Gene Dahlbender Jr. carded the day's lowest and only subpar round with a 37-33—70, and stood in a tie for third with Ansley pro Ewing Pomeroy at 147. Pomeroy carded a 71. Only other even-par shooter was Johnny Carson, who played early and then headed for Macon where he competed in the Peach Blossom four-ball tournament at Idle Hour Country Club Friday afternoon.

New pairings and starting times will be announced Sunday for Monday's final 18 at Standard.

Vereen Takes Second

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 27 (AP)—Georgia Tech's Carl Vereen, who set a meet record here last year, was dethroned as discus champion in the Drake Relays Friday.

Vereen, who flipped a record 172-11 last year, wound up second in finals Friday with a toss of 164-3⅞. The winner was Al Oerter of Kansas, who threw 170-5¼. Byrl Thompson, 29-year-old Minnesota husky, failed in his try for an unprecedented fourth relays title. Thompson, who last won in 1950, placed third with 159-6¼.

Smyrna Clinches Crown; Owls' Nix Socks Five Hits

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Dudley Barnes, Sam Taylor, Kenneth Nix and Jack Beckham made news, headlines and baseball fans at their own high schools happy Friday as Smyrna Campbell clinched a pennant, Chamblee was thwarted in its bid to clinch one, and Fulton, West Fulton and Northside kept rolling along like Old Man River.

Barnes, lean Campbell right-hander who snuffed out neighboring Sprayberry the day before on five hits, 7-3, did it again by a 5-2 count, on four hits, three by shortstop Jack Robertson. Don Blackburn's triple and single, and singles by Richard Mitchell and Harry McCleskey in a three-run inning ruined Sprayberry ace David Higgins as Dixie Howell's lads clinched the crown in one division of 4-A.

Dudley Barnes

Avondale's Taylor let Chamblee's other division leaders down with a lone single by Toby House, fanned six, walked one and faced only 23 batters in a 6-0 upset victory. Jim Head batted in three runs with a triple, double and single. Ralph Adams poled a homer and single, Sonny Kutche a triple and single, Roy Humphries two singles for Avondale.

Catcher Nix walloped four singles and a double in five trips in spurring West Fulton to a 17-4 victory over O'Keefe behind Alex Jones' six-hitter. Slug Lindsey batted in four runs with a homer, double and single. Marvin Tibbetts cracked a three-run homer, and Wayne Postell belted three hits, Junior Chadwick two.

Russell's unbeaten Beckham won his fifth victory, allowing six singles, fanning 12, walking two as Decatur fell, 10-4.

Fairburn Campbell closed its season with a 4-0 victory over Hapeville on Don Ramsey's four-hit, seven-whiff, three-walk stint. Gary Wingo was two-for-two for Fairburn. Marist upended Southwest DeKalb, 5-4, despite homers by Tommy Lewis and Donnie Watkins. Frank Roper led Marist with two blows.

Fulton dumped Smith, 8-2, on Dan McEachern's four-hit, 10-strike-out stint. Grady's George Heald bested North Fulton's Gene Farr, 3-2, as Larry Lafkowitz' single scored two runners. Each hurler allowed four hits. Unbeaten Max Staples fanned nine as Northside clipped Bass, 11-1, despite Robert Clem's triple and two singles. Southwest edged Brown, 8-7, as Marshall McDuffie whacked three hits, Alex Pyron two and Virgil Stovall a homer.

IN OUR CHURCHES: Mental Health Week Programs Are Set

By KAY McLEOD

Many Atlanta churches are responding to the call of the Mental Health Assn. in support of Mental Health Week which begins this Sunday.

Some weeks ago the mental health group sent letters to Atlanta ministers, priests and rabbis asking for support of the mental health program.

Naming mental illness as the nation's Number One health problem, Charles S. Dudley, Greater Atlanta fund chairman, asked that the fight against mental diseases be mentioned in Atlanta pulpits this Sunday.

Many Atlanta clergymen, realizing the church must minister to the body, mind and soul, have given full support to the program.

Dr. Roy O. McClain, First Baptist Church, will bring the third in a series of four Sunday night messages on "Christianity and Mental Health" at his Sunday evening service.

Dr. McClain points out that 50 per cent of today's hospitalized patients are suffering from functional diseases caused by stress, emotional imbalance, worry, anxiety and fear. His series has been designed to show the relation of Christian faith and Christ's teaching to human ills.

"Mental health is the oldest concern of the church," says Dr. Robert Burns, pastor Peachtree Christian Church.

The minister said that all pastors, priests and rabbis work with the emotionally disturbed. He urged anyone with an emotional problem to seek help from his pastor.

The Rev. Wilson W. Sneed, St. Luke's Episcopal Church, said he had witnessed many situations where "the benefits of the spiritual resources of the church coupled with the work of the trained psychiatrist have resulted in the recovery of the emotionally disturbed person."

"The church has the responsibility for taking an active part in the relieving of mental illness and seeking to find and eliminate the cause," said the Rev. Cecil Myers, Trinity Methodist Church.

He said part of his church's program for the past five years had been a counseling clinic which works with psychiatrists and psychologists.

The Rev. Wendell Wellman, First Church of the Nazarene, will devote his morning sermon to the problem. His subject will be "Mental Health Concerns the Christian Too!"

"Religion and Mental Health" will be the subject of Dr. J. T. Ford's morning message at Wieuca Road Baptist Church.

Christian Family Week will be observed next week at Newton Estates Methodist Church.

Your Family Can't Decide —You Must

QUESTION: I am a young man who has been raised in a Christian home. My father has been in an active ministry for years. One of my brothers is a missionary. I have lived a clean life, and am thought of by many as being very religious. But I am troubled. I often have fears about whether or not I will join them in heaven. Do you know why I should have such fears?—B. I. C.

ANSWER: I cannot answer for you, and say that you just should have no fear. Perhaps there is good reason for your fears. In your letter to me, you have not so much as mentioned whether you have personally trusted Christ. You mention no time when you took Him as Saviour and Lord.

You cannot depend on your father and your brother. They came to the time when they made a decision to receive Christ, and so must you. I would suggest that you no longer think of your family as a basis for your hope, and face the clear question for yourself. Have you been born again?

Jesus said, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of heaven." I think that Nicodemus, to whom Jesus spoke, was just as surprised as you are. Nicodemus acted on this counsel, and you will find your peace when you do the same.

Reservoirs Called Solution To State's Many Droughts

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

Rainfall in Georgia is appallingly "erratic"—but irrigation is being used by more and more farmers to maintain high levels of crop production, an official of the U.S. Department of Agriculture said here Friday.

John R. Carreker, superintendent of the Soil and Water Conservation Branch, Agricultural Research Service, said records show Georgia has "frequent droughts of short duration" that limit crops.

Speaking at the 33rd annual meeting of the Georgia Academy of Science at Georgia Tech, Carreker said average annual rainfall in Georgia is 50 inches. He noted, however, that the annual rainfall at Athens in the past 71 years has varied from 32.20 inches to 75.80 inches.

RAIN SHORT

Defining a drought as 14 or more days with no more than .25 inch of rain any day, Carreker said Athens has had 286 two-week droughts, 60 four-week droughts and 24 six-week droughts in the past 65 years.

He said the "same trend in droughts" was shown in similar studies at Rome, Macon and Tifton in a 25-year period.

"Adequate soil moisture throughout the crop growing season," he said, "is now recognized as a major need in agricultural production."

BIG GAIN

Carreker said the "rapid increase" in irrigation systems in Georgia is evident in a study showing 1,906 irrigation systems in 1955—compared with only 35 in 1945.

"At a cost of $100 to $150 per acre for an irrigation system," he said, "this program is rapidly becoming a big business in this state."

M. T. Thompson, district engineer, Surface Water Branch, U.S. Geological Survey, said Georgia has some 30,000 farm ponds that could be used for irrigation.

DROUGHT SOLUTION

Thompson said he believes "small reservoirs properly designed are the only answer to the drought problem in the Piedmont section of Georgia."

A. L. Kovner, associate director of the Coweta Hydrologic Laboratory, U. S. Forest Service, discussed effects of manipulating forest vegetation on Georgia's water resources.

Dr. Wilbur Duncan of the University of Georgia is the new president of the Georgia Academy of Science, succeeding Dr. George Seward of Oglethorpe University. Dr. William H. Jones of Emory University is president-elect. Nelson Severinghaus of Decatur was named councilor-at-large. Dr. Marion Clark of Emory University is secretary, and Dr. J. G. Lester of Emory is treasurer.

Oils Lead List Up As Tape Expands

Rails, Chemicals, Aircrafts Also Rise Amid Bullish Air

By RADER WINGET

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—Strong oil shares paced a substantially higher stock market today. The rise was accomplished on expanded volume, with a bullish air about proceedings.

Gains of 3 to 5 points were found in key places with many stocks up 1 to 3 points. Higher with oils were railroads, chemicals, aircrafts, rubbers and several other divisions, including meat packers.

Although nothing was really depressed, both motors and steels suffered from late profit-taking. Steelworkers gave notice they would demand higher wages in a new agreement.

Cement stocks were kicked ahead when the House approved a bill calling for a vast highway construction program.

Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up $1.40, best rise in more than a month. Industrial component added $3.10, railroads 60 cents at a new high since 1929 of $151.40 and utilities remained unchanged.

Frisco Stock Trustee Elected To C. of Ga. Directors Board

SAVANNAH, April 27 (AP)—The Central of Georgia Railway board of directors Friday elected Fred B. Wilson of Duluth, Ga., a director, but then adjourned their annual stockholders' meeting until Oct. 19 because of a controversy over whether the new director can vote his stock.

Wilson fills the board vacancy created by the recent death of J. T. Haley of Albany. He resides in Duluth and is an Atlanta businessman and farmer.

Wilson is trustee for the 55.5 per cent of Central stock now owned by the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway, which is seeking operating control of Central in an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing.

A group of Central minority stockholders appeared at the meeting and sought to prevent Wilson from voting his stock. It has been contended in the ICC hearing that this would be illegal.

The directors held their annual election of officers and authorized expenditures totaling $346,756 for improvement of Central's facilities.

Central directors authorized these expenditures: $225,000 for purchase of track maintenance and equipment; $14,660 for off-track equipment; $38,840 for radio equipment to be installed on diesel units; $3,700 for construction of a radio repair shop at Macon; $3,100 for a similar shop at Columbus; $14,000 for a high unloading machine; $35,928 for conversion of 12 flatcars to be used for distribution of crossties; $11,530 for new grade crossing and crossing protection near Hapeville.

While the directors and stockholders were meeting, another factor important in Central's future was the concluding Savannah session of the ICC hearing on the Frisco petition that it be granted operating control of Central.

John T. Bradford, the ICC examiner, recessed the meeting until May 23 at 11 a.m. in the ICC building at Washington, D.C.

2 Casts in Play At O'Keefe High

O'Keefe seniors are going all out for "Girl Crazy." For the first time in the school's history, the annual senior play will be presented for a two-night run. This year's production, "Girl Crazy," will be presented in the school auditorium on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The production will introduce the double - cast system at O'Keefe; with different students playing the starring roles on Wednesday.

The play tells the story of Danny Churchill, who learned his lesson the hard way. When Danny's father died, his will stated that Danny, in order to inherit, would be banished from New York, night life and fast living, to spend a year on a ranch in a wide-place-in-the-road Arizona town.

A series of adventures, Western style, sets the pace for the play. The production also features several popular songs, including "Embraceable You."

Danny will be played by Douglas Bailey on both nights.

The play features Beverly Shope and Betty Jo Sosebee as Molly, the sweet postmistress of Custerville, Ariz. Other students in feature roles are Wayne Abercrombie, Douglas Stewart, Mickey Lawson, Gary Umberger, Gloria Bennett, Tim Conch, Beverly Sweat and Karen Jacobs.

The play is under the direction of Miss Clara Dunn.

Russell Senior Play

"Grandma Goes Hollywood" is the title of the Russell High senior play, to be presented at the City Auditorium in East Point at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Members of the cast include Betsy Palmer, Norma Warner, Pat Cox, Molly George, Marian Flynn, June Waller, Marion Chatman, Jim Collins, Jerry Scraggs, Mimmy Yarbrough and George Burns.

The play is under the direction of Russell faculty member Bill Thompson.

Red, Black Brushes Off Faculty, Hits Talmadge

By M. L. ST. JOHN

The Red and Black, student publication of the University of Georgia, Friday defied faculty censorship and printed a column attacking former Gov. Talmadge, president of the Alumni Society.

In the background of the dispute was the anticipated forthcoming race for the United States Senate between Sen. George and Talmadge.

The student paper published rumors that Alumni Society by-laws are being violated in a possible move to elect Robert Troutman Jr. of Atlanta, Talmadge friend, to the presidency by acclamation. Ballots for new officers have not been distributed 60 days before the June meeting, as required in the by-laws, the paper said.

BY-LAWS CITED

By-laws are being violated to accommodate the political plans of Talmadge, the paper said. It apparently means that Talmadge would try to continue to hold an influence over alumni in an election year by handpicking his successor.

The author of the charges is the head of the Students-for-George club on the campus. He is Bob Miller of Atlanta, associate editor and columnist of the Red and Black.

Miller said the Alumni Society was called into meeting at Athens this Saturday on an illegal date. Troutman took responsibility for setting the meeting a motnh early, stating it was to get a good crowd while the "G-Day" football games are in town.

NIX QUOTED

However, Miller quoted Abit Nix of Athens, former alumni president, as stating Troutman and no one else had authority to change the by-laws fixing the date of the society meeting.

Former Gov. Talmadge said the student editors were "grossly misinformed" concerning Troutman and the presidency.

"Robert Troutman Jr. would make an outstanding president of the Alumni Society, but he has not sought and would not accept such honor," Talmadge commented. "No election of officers is contemplated until the regular date for election."

(There were reports in Atlanta that Commissioner of Agriculture Phil Campbell of Watkinsville is under consideration of the nominating committee for the presidency).

3-TO-2 VOTE

The Red and Black Board of Control voted, 3 to 2, that Miller's column would not be printed in the student paper. The board said it would be "in the best interests of the university" for the column not to be approved for publication.

However, the paper, of which Gordon Roberts of Atlanta is editor, said editorially it felt it must publish the column through responsibility to its readers and the editors' own consciences. It said the Board of Control placed expediency before truth.

"We feel that, perhaps, the board acted as only it could in the face of criticism and pressure," the paper said. "But The Red and Black will not compromise. The very nature of submitting to political pressures is repugnant to The Red and Black. It is unfortunate that such a political climate exists in this state. Its evil manifestations reach far; but it should not touch an institution dedicated to higher learning and molding future citizens."

Million Georgians-Plus File U.S. Tax Returns

By BOB WILLIMON

Georgians filed more than a million individual federal income tax returns for the first time in history this year.

And an increase over last year of 13.6 per cent more taxpayers—coupled possibly with 1955's boom conditions — has so far netted Uncle Sam an additional $7½ million from this source in Georgia.

That's the picture released Friday by Paul Cobb, district director of the Internal Revenue Service. The picture is still incomplete as an estimated $7 million is yet to be tallied on the books, Cobb said.

$101 MILLION INCOME

Records through April 25 show that the 1,031,341 returns received so far this year reported individual income taxes amounting to $101,160,453.28. This compares with 907,220 returns and $93,547,121.43 for the corresponding 1955 period.

Collections by the service from all sources this year so far total $544½ million. This represents an approximate 14 per cent increase over last year's corresponding $478 million.

The service has received 24,765 more pieces of mail so far this year as compared to last year. This year's figure is 1,222,846; last year's, 1,198,081.

Cobb noted that there seem to be "fewer stragglers" filing returns this year.

MYSTERY TAXPAYER

Under the heading of money received without proper identification attached, the director said "once again" he had received a "big bundle" from apparently the same force.

This year the white-paper-and-adhesive-taped bundle contained $4,480—mostly in $100 and $50 bills.

"It must be from somebody who hasn't filed returns," Cobb conjectures. He said the money has been credited to the Treasury Department's general fund and records made of the bills' serial numbers.

"Just in case the individual involved ever needs the credit to square himself and can identify the money by serial number," Cobb explained.

$105,000 PROGRAM

Art Group Begins Drive For 'First-Rate' Institute

Pledges amounting to one-seventh of a proposed $105,000 Atlanta Art Institute expansion program were reported at a luncheon meeting of the Atlanta Art Assn. Friday.

Walter C. Hill, chairman of the Art Assn., outlined plans for the fund-raising project to be conducted during May.

Hill said the campaign marks the beginning of a three-year program to establish "a really first-rate commercial art and fine arts school in Atlanta."

Reviewing the history of the 25-year-old Institute, Hill said that the school had been operated on tuition funds and subsidies from the Art Assn. in the past. "But," he continued, "no school has or can operate on tuition only."

Dr. Allen Albert Jr., president of the association, said that the aim of the campaign is to match dollar-for-dollar funds received from tuition.

He said that at the end of the three-year period the school will have reached a point of academic quality that will enable it to attract endowment funds.

Dr. Albert said that student enrollment would be on a selective basis. The criterion of the school, he said, would be quality instead of size.

Mrs. Leonard Haas outlined an intensive fund-raising campaign scheduled for the May. Seeking donations over a three-year period, representatives will contact leading businessmen and firms.

The planned curriculum will include night classes. Scholarships will be offered to deserving students in the Atlanta area.

Members of the steering committee for the fund-raising campaign are Dr. Albert, Hill, Ivan Allen Sr., Harold Montag, Tucker Wayne, John McKenzie, Mrs. Granger Hansell, Beverly DuBose Jr., Julian Trivers, Ed Forio, Mrs. John Appleby and Mrs. Ben Hall.

Laying Out Slum Work Sped Here

Atlanta planning officials hope to begin scheduling work on plotting a 13--million-dollar, three-project redevelopment program here by the middle of next week.

M. B. Satterfield, executive director of the Atlanta Housing Authority, the city's agent in the redevelopment program, said Friday his office is awaiting formal confirmation of the federal grant to Atlanta and specific instructions on procedures before moving to obliterate the blighted areas.

He anticipated that the confirmation will come promptly. Urban renewal Commissioner J. W. Follin announced the grant to Atlanta Thursday. The action came as the Housing and Home Finance Agency approved $452,000 for advance planning through the Urban Renewal Administration.

Under preliminary discussions already held, the Atlanta Housing Authority will move as promptly as possible to launch studies for the redevelopment planned for a 245-acre tract in the Rawson-Washington street area; the 209-acre tract known as the Butler street project, and the 315-acre tract known as the university center project.

A coordinator must be named and other details must be worked out. It is expected that civic groups will be asked to cooperate in the program and project organizations will be formed to attempt to get approval from property owners and tenants in affected areas.
